

What is a Farm Worth to Proprietor, Tenant or Investor?

MIXED HUSBANDRY ROTATE CROPS PAYS

A farm may be particularly desirable for any one, two, or all three principal purposes, viz.:

- A place to live,
- A place to grow crops, and
- A place to do business.

Its value as a place to live will depend mostly on location and improvements, taste and ability of owner or occupant to equip and maintain, (the same as a residence anywhere else).

Sentiment sometimes has a large influence.

Recently an eighty acre farm belonging to an estate, at a court sale, was bought by some of the heirs, for $445.00 an acre. Worth of improvements on place estimated to be about $10,000 ($125 per acre) making price for the land $320 an acre. It would seem that sentiment in this case had a large influence.

Rivalry among neighbors desiring to acquire land in their neighborhood often puts prices up far beyond its value as an income producer.

While such cases are not infrequent they do not determine real value.

The word FARMING, as used in this discussion, means mixed husbandry with a definite system for diversification and rotation.

To the occupant, be he owner or tenant, his chief concern will be what the land may (or can be made to) produce, and its value as a place to do business.

By "a place to do business" is meant to keep a dairy, poultry, raise and fit for market, live stock, etc.

Let us first consider value to owner living on and farming an average all tillable 160 acre farm in Northern Illinois.

First—it is a home. HOME! The magic in the sense of real ownership thrills, urges, and makes and stabilizes a citizenship worth while. In this respect its value is beyond computation.

Next—its worth as an income producer, considering first, in this regard, crop production, basing estimates on annual production for a ten year period.

As climatic and all other conditions affecting agriculture, average annual production, and prices for farm products, in ten periods, have been, and in the future probably will be, the same (one ten year period substantially the same one as any other) results that may be obtained, in a ten year period, on or from a farm, character, quality and condition of its soil being known) can more accurately be predetermind than in or from any other undertaking.

From any average, all tillable, 160 acre farm in this vicinity, under a well devised and arranged plan and program for mixed husbandry, diversification and rotation of crops, for a definite ten year period, consistently and efficiently carried out, (subject, of course, to such modification as circumstances may dictate, but in the main strictly adhered to) the average annual production and results that may reasonably be expected for the TEN YEAR PERIOD will be about as follows:—

50 acres corn, 50 bu. per acre @ $20 per bu.	$1000
10 acres oats, 50 bu. per acre @ $22 per bu.	150
15 acres barley, 40 bu. per acre @ $50 per bu.	300
10 acres wheat, 30 bu. per acre @ $100 per bu.	200
5 acres soy beans, 30 bu. per acre @ $100 per bu.	150
40 acres alfalfa, 3 tons per acre @ $50.00 per ton.	2400
(or 807 beans and sweet clover)
30 acres pasture and yards	4870
Probable necessary cash outlay	1300
Net return for labor in crop production	3570

To this add for labor its earnings with a 20 cow dairy, yielding 20 lbs. of milk per cow, per day, @ at one cent per lb., net.

60 hogs, 200 lbs. each, @ 750 less cash outlay (feed) $450

From poultry and eggs, $3.00 per day, Soy beans in all corn will add upwards $500 and raising 10 calves each year will upwards of $200

Making total net return for labor $7375

If dairy is increased to 30 cows and hog crop to 100 hogs such increase will produce sufficient additional income to pay a hired man and maintain (for useful use) an automobile.

This is $46 per acre which after deducting $6 per acre for taxes, insurance and upkeep leaves $40 per acre (20 per cent on $200) making net income from the farm for the year $6400.00

That above estimates are conservative is confirmed by C. D. Schoonmaker, Internal Revenue Collector for this district, who says that he has checked up several farmers who have done much better.

Many farmers interviewed are doing as well, or better, and say that possibilities are far beyond.

But, you may say, this means a lot of work! Yes, but it is work with brawn and brains functioning together that gets the money.

Can it be done? Will it pay? It can, and it will if operator will keep well within a well devised well balanced budget; in other words, "if he don't get gay."

If occupant and operator is a tenant, under a 50—50 share rent lease he will have net for his labor one half of the $7345 or $3672.53 and $23 per acre, and the owner the same.

But the owner will have to pay taxes on the land and insurance on buildings which together with upkeep may amount to $6 per acre which will still leave the owner $17 net per acre or 8 1/2 per cent on $200.

That such a farm, so operated, is worth $200 per acre would seem to be a fair conclusion. Risk in ownership would, however, be against a higher valuation.

Another picture, taken from life, tells a different story, and shows something of some conditions, too common that may be remedied, that make some proprietors and some tenants curse the government and every other thing and say that there is nothing in farming any more.

This farm is fairly well improved (but needs some fixing) is well located, all tillable and ought to be doing as well and worth as much as the other.

On this farm, season of 1922, there was produced on:

70 acres 40 bu. corn per acre @ $20	$1400
40 acres 30 bu. oats per acre @ $32	384
15 acres 50 bu. barley per acre @ $80	270
20 acres 1 1/2 tons hay per acre @ $800	2400
15 acres pastures and yards	2291
Estimated cash outlay for seed etc. $600
Rent $7.00 per acre	1120
Leaving tenant for his labor	574

and a place to live in the meantime. This farm had been rented for a period of years, cash rent. No stock on it for some years.

The landlord, considering the meager net income derived from this farm, and realizing that something must be done to even maintain its present rental value, and desiring to better it, offered to put on a good dairy, some brood sows, and furnish lime stone and half of legume seeds needed, charge tenant only 4 per cent interest on half of live stock furnished, and to make a ten year con-

COOPER—PATTERSON

Allen Patterson Announces Marriage to Miss Jennie Cooper at Graduation

Upon receiving his diploma last Sunday from the University of Notre Dame after four years of excellent work in the commerce and banking course from which he was graduated cum laudis, Allen Patterson astounded his parents and friends congratulated on that eventful occasion by introducing to them his wife, formerly Miss Jennie Cooper of Oak Park.

The surprise is more complete when it is known that they were married on January 4, 1923 in Chicago and kept it a secret until after the exercises when Allen gently broke the news that swept the entire campus off its feet. Dillion Patterson, the groom's older brother, after he was sure the "kid" wasn't trying to "pull" anything over on him, marched the happy couple down town and in company with the groom's parents sat down to a wedding dinner in the LaSalle hotel.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Cooper of Oak Park and formerly lived near Genoa. She is a very pretty young lady with charming manners and has succeeded in getting one of the finest men for her husband.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Patterson of Genoa. He grew to manhood here and after service overseas in the army worked his way through college.

He is to be congratulated upon receiving such an estimable young lady for his life long partner and the whole community extends its best wishes to the happy couple.

ALUMNI REUNION

Old Graduates of the G. H. S. Welcome Class of 23 Tuesday Evening

The auditorium of the high school was the scene of many smiles and happy recollections last Tuesday evening when the members of the various graduating classes turned out to welcome the class of '23 into the Alumni association.

The event was in charge of the class of '22 and, altho only three of the class were on hand to put the thing over, they did it with neatness and despatch, sending out the announcements, getting up a program and serving light refreshments.

The gathering, because of the short notice, was perforce small, but what each class lacked in numbers was made up in enthusiasm. A roll call showed at least one member from nearly every class, the first class to graduate from the Genoa high school (in 1881) being represented by C. A. Brown.

After the roll call, light refreshments were served and the books turned over to the class of '23 who will be responsible for the gathering next year to welcome the class of '24.

TO BUILD GARAGE

D. G. Cummings will Erect Structure on Main Street in East Part of Town

D. G. Cummings, expert machinist and auto repairer, who recently left the employe of the Genoa Garage to go in business for himself, has found so much work to do in the garage line that he will start to build at once the building will not be a pretentious edifice to begin with, but he assures his patrons that they will get the best of service and as space demands warrant, he will add to the building. A tire service will be installed as well as a few accessories and gas, but the main part of the business will be repair work.

For the present Mr. Cummings is located in the barn east of the Frank Scott residence on Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kiernan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fisher Sunday.

Geo Sherwood of Elgin was a business caller here Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McNicholas of Elgin spent Sunday here with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hoffman.

tract on a 50—50 basis. The tenant, a good worker, was pleased with the proposition. On discussing it with his wife, however, it seemed to suit her all right until the dairy was mentioned, then she threw up her hand and exclaimed, "Keep a dairy! Well, I should say not, we would have to be here every night and morning to tend to it and could not go anywhere."

THE COMIC OPERA—"OLIVETTE"

DAVIES LIGHT OPERA COMPANY AT CHAUTAUQUA

CAPTAIN DEMERRIMAC had gained the consent of Marvejo, the Sueschal, to his marriage to his daughter, Olivette. Things progressed nicely for the Captain (but not so agreeably for Olivette) until the arrival of Valentine, the Captain's nephew, who loved Olivette and was loved, by her. The Captain being called away to his ship, Valentine disguised himself as his Uncle, the Captain, and married Olivette. On the Captain's return complications naturally developed. . . . But to get the entire story with all of its clean comedy you will have to see and hear the Davies Opera Co. on the third day of the Chautauqua.

MARKETING CO. WHIPPED IN WALWORTH MILK CASE

Judge Davidson Turns Money over to Producers After Court Case

The Walworth Milk case which was tried in the court of Walworth county before Judge C. M. Davidson has been decided. The case to determine whether a sum of money held by the court should be turned over to the farmer producers or the Milk Producers' Co-Operative Marketing Company. The arguments in the case were heard at Waukesha a few days ago and the decision of the Judge is in favor of the producers. The money will be refunded to the farmer producers. The decision in full is as follows:

"After considering the evidence, the arguments and briefs of counsel in the above titled action, I am of the opinion that the contract between the Milk Producers' Co-Operative Marketing Company, a corporation, and the milk producers is wholly void and unenforceable on the part of the Marketing company.

Section 1770b, sub-division 10, also Section 1770j, subdivision 2.

I am also of the opinion that the contract is utterly void on account of lack of mutuality in the contract. I am also of the opinion that even if the contract was a good and valid contract that The Milk Producers' Co-Operative Marketing company, a corporation, has unlawfully and unreasonably breached the same; that it has illegally and unlawfully diverted money that belonged to the producers from their proper source.

The contract, if at all legal, contemplated nothing more than the marketing of milk. The Marketing company, on the other hand, unlawfully diverted large amounts of illegal spread fees and assessed the producers such enormous amounts of spread fees that it made it impossible for the producer to continue the contract and made it impossible for them to abide by the terms of the contract.

I am of the opinion that the Milk Producers' Co-Operatives Marketing company unreasonably and in fraud of the rights of the milk producers breached the contract if it was valid.

I am also of the opinion that the contract was invalid from its inception, that there are no mutual meetings of the minds of the parties; the producers contemplated that it was only a selling agreement as to their milk; the Marketing Co., upon the other hand had in mind more of a protective insurance association and with this idea in mind unlawfully diverted a great amount of money belonging to the milk producers.

Judgment will therefore go to the milk producers and the attorneys for the milk producers will draw the proper findings, submit them to the attorneys on the opposite side, then forward them to the court for signature.

C. M. DAVIDSON, Circuit Judge

Elkhorn Independent. Mr. and Mrs. Will Gnakow and grandson, Edward, spent Tuesday and Wednesday at their farm near St. Charles.

BANKERS IN BIG MEETING

Over 400 bankers from the members of Group Three of the Illinois Bankers Association were entertained at the Kishwaukee Country club, commencing at ten o'clock in the morning, Tuesday, June 12.

Following the registration of the guests, which is thought to be one of the largest attendances ever registered, the Barb City Quartet of DeKalb entertained with several selections. The morning hour was devoted to the appointment of committee passing of resolutions, and the nomination of new officers.

George A. Fox, director of the Sycamore National bank, gave the address of welcome to the large attendance while Omar H. Wright, president of the Second National Bank of Belvidere, responded, voicing the appreciation of the delegates for the courteous way in which the DeKalb county bankers entertained.

At 12 o'clock dinner was served by the Martha society of the First Lutheran church, consisting of fruit cocktail, olives, hearts of celery, radishes, flit of beef tenderloin with mush rooms, new potatoes, asparagus tips, head lettuce, thousand island dressing, strawberries, ice cream, cake, coffee, peppermint patties and cigars and cigarettes being served.

At the session in the afternoon Charles P. Ireland, M. A. Graettinger, Wirt Wright, and James R. Howard were the speakers. Mr. Ireland, president of the Washburn bank, Washburn, and chairman of the protective committee of the Illinois Bankers Association, spoke on "Protective Divisions," a topic developed from a fund of knowledge Mr. Ireland has obtained in his many years' experience as a banker.

Mr. Graettinger, secretary Illinois Bankers Association, in his topic, "Your Insurance Policy," gave an insight into the matters of safety as concerned with banks.

To Wirt Wright, president of the association and president of the National Stock Yards National Bank, fell the lot of talking on "Association? al Observations," dealing with a subject that only the president of the association could lecture on; in his capacity as president of the association next few years, hopes that look for Mr. Wright comes in contact with many points that are of great interest to other members of the association, and his address dealt with this phase of the work.

James R. Howard, former president of the American Farm Bureau, and well known in this vicinity closed the meeting with his well delivered address, "The Dawn of a New Era," speaking of the hopes that lie in the next few years, hopes that look for the best in every one and which cannot be obtained except through hard and unflinching work.

Officers of Group Three are: S. E. Bradt, DeKalb, chairman; L. H. Miles, vice chairman; and F. J. King, secretary-treasurer. To these three men go the credit of making the program a success.

FORMER GENOA GIRL MARRIES

Friends of Miss Francis Hoover of this city will be surprised to hear of her marriage last Saturday in Freeport to Clarence R. Colehour, of Mt. Carroll, Ill.

The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church of Freeport by Charles Griggs, a former pastor of the bride when she lived in Genoa. After a short honeymoon to Rockford, Sycamore and several other cities, the couple will be at home in Mt. Carroll, where the bridegroom is engaged in business.

Mrs. Colehour has for the past year been an instructor in the science and language department of the Chadwick high school, which is located a short distance from Mt. Carroll.

Her large number of friends will wish her much happiness and success in her married life.

GENOA TO PLAY SYCAMORE

The local ball team will play the Sycamore team Sunday at Electric Park, game beginning at 2:30. Genoa has won a majority of their contests this year and will put up a strenuous fight against this strong organization. Manager Overly says it is likely that some new faces will be in the lineup this week to bolster up the positions that have been rather weak.

Anyone wishing to ride over can do so on the truck that will carry the players.

YERKES OBSERVATORY OPEN

Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., is open to visitors on Saturday afternoons of each week, the visiting hours being from 1:30 to 4:30. Admission, however, will be made by card only. Cards will be mailed by addressing Yerkes' Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis., inclosing a self addressed and stamped envelope.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

Beginning with this issue the Republican will conduct a Radio Department for the interest of those who have taken to radio. The department will be under the editorship of the undersigned. From week to week will appear articles concerning radio. To make this department a success we desire your cooperation. If you have any suggestion or comment write to F. O. Grams, Genoa, Illinois.

We should like your list of stations you have received during any definite period. These will be published in this department.

Wireless and Radio

As the first of the articles of this department we are taking up the difference between radio and wireless. Frequently persons ask whether a person has a radio or a wireless set.

In the first place there is no difference. It is the same as trying to differentiate between cows and kibe.

If we analyze the words we find that wireless means something without wires. Some sets, however, use several miles of wire in their transformers. Every person who can talk has a "real wireless." He communi-

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Grand Jury thru Its Foreman, Sam Zeller, Returns Indictments

REECE GIVEN ONE TO TEN YEARS

Younger Reece Brother and Former Justice of Peace Milligan of DeKalb. Out on Probation

The June grand jury of the circuit court, DeKalb Co. convened last Monday by Judge Fulton, reported to the court on Tuesday afternoon through its foreman, Sam Zeller, that it had completed its work for the present time. Twelve true bills for indictments were returned into court, ten of which hit Samuel A. Milligan, former justice of the peace of the city of DeKalb.

The indictments returned were as follows:

Indictment charging Samuel A. Milligan with confidence game. This indictment grows out of the deal in which it is alleged Milligan represented to Paul Kasir, a foreigner of DeKalb that he was the owner of a house in DeKalb and collected from him about $650 on accounts of $200 monthly payments, interest and taxes. The property was later found to belong to one Hattlestad of Radcliffe, Iowa, who claimed he never authorized Milligan to sell the property and had not received any of the payments made by Kasir, except the sum of $10 per month for rent.

Indictment charging Milligan with embezzlement. It is alleged in this indictment that on May 1, 1922, Milligan filed one Joseph Marriott for the sum of $25.00 and pocketed the fine.

The next two indictments also charge the embezzlement of $35.00 in each case, being fines imposed upon Mike Ridulph and N. Ridulph of DeKalb, for violation of the Fish and Game law. Milligan never sent the fine to the department as directed by law but on the contrary used it.

Indictment charging Milligan with embezzlement of $40 from Sears Roebuck and Co., it is alleged that Sears, Roebuck forwarded an account to collect for a stove which was later recovered and sold by him for $40 which money was misappropriated by Milligan.

It is alleged in the next indictment that Milligan for the sum of $1,400 sold on behalf of one Gertrude M. Veit of Chicago, property located in DeKalb to one Duffy and after the ments of certain accounts authorized by her there remained balance which was misappropriated by him.

The next indictment also charges Milligan with embezzlement of the sum of $90 belonging to one Jennie M. Gandy and Florence E. Owen of Frankfort, Kansas. The women sold a house on a contract to Frank Upson and payments were to be made monthly to Milligan. The last nine it is alleged have been misused.

An indictment was also voted against Milligan on charges of embezzlement of $109 from Fred C. Buck of DeKalb. This money it is alleged was collected by Milligan from Mr. Buck and which money Milligan failed to account for on demand. A warrant was sworn out in this case but Milligan succeeded in raising the money and paying off Mr. Buck but due to the subsequent numerous claims against Milligan prosecution was not dropped and all the matters went before the grand jury for their action.

The last two indictments charge Milligan with the embezzlement of $20.00 from R. L. Gullickson of DeKalb and Frank Upson of DeKalb. In both cases money for auto license was collected by Milligan who was to obtain a license from Springfield but in both cases the license never came due to the fact the money was never forwarded.

After weeks of preparation for trial on the part of State's Attorney Pount in the case of burning to defraud against Ernest Reece and George Reece, alleged fire-bugs of Esmond, the array of legal talent consisting of Dwight and Rothbart and Meyer of Chicago and E. M. Burst, representing the two defendants, changed their minds about trying to defeat the State's case and on Monday, June 11, 1923, when the trial was to

Detailed Cost Accounts of Thirteen Farms

By E. RAUCHENSTEIN,
Department of Farm Organization and Management, University of Illinois.
Thirteen farms in Champaign and Piatt counties have been summarized for 1922. These cost accounts included 1,080 acres of corn, 183 acres of soy beans, 405 acres of winter wheat and 645 acres of oats. The average expenses and income per acre were as follows:

	EXPENSES
	Corn	Beans	Wheat	Oats
Man labor...	3.59	2.69	2.66	1.32
Horse labor...	5.05	5.10	4.24	2.55
Tractor...	.72	.42	.64	.25
Seed...	.14	1.85	1.70	1.04
Machinery...	.86	1.06	1.54	.45
Gen. farm exp.	4.37	3.96	3.32	2.02
*Misc. ....	.29	1.63	1.31	1.06
Total operating expense...	$15.09	$16.45	$15.42	$7.99
Int. on land...	$12.50	$12.50	$12.50	$12.50
Total exp. ....	$27.59	$28.95	$27.92	$20.49

*Includes twine, fuel, threshing and fertilizers.

	INCOME
	Corn	Beans	Wheat	Oats
Grain .....	$26.92	$17.64	$21.74	$4.45
Roughage .....	.01	5.63	2.43	1.86
Pasture .....	.85	1.14	1.05	.58
Total income...	$27.78	$24.36	$26.22	$10.89

Net profit... $ 1.19 $ 4.59 $ 1.70 $ 9.60
Corn is the only crop which showed a net profit when 5 per cent interest on $250 land was charged as an expense of production. However, before passing judgment on the merits of the above crops a number of factors must be considered. Soy beans were grown on a comparatively small acreage. The yield was low, only 15.3 bushels per acre. No doubt the lack of experience in growing soy beans and unfavorable conditions during 1922 were largely responsible for the low yields. They were credited to the fields at $1.15 per bushel and corn at 56 cents. On the basis of these prices and the above expenses, soy beans yielding 20 bushels would return a profit per acre slightly above the profit from corn. Since soy beans compete with corn for labor to a greater extent than wheat or oats, they must come nearer to showing the same profit as corn if they are to secure a permanent place in the rotation. Factors such as effect on soil fertility must, of course, be considered.

Wheat was credited to the fields at 98 cents per bushel. This is below its normal ratio to corn. On the basis of a 60-year price average (1890-1919) wheat sells at $1.02 1/2 when corn is 56 cents per bushel. Thus, with average prices prevailing, wheat yielding one-half as many bushels per acre as corn would give the same net return. Furthermore, wheat does not compare with corn for labor except at harvest time.

Oats showed the largest loss per acre. They were credited to the fields at 27 cents per bushel. With corn at 56 cents the 60-year ratio of oats and corn would give a price of .366 for oats. At this price it would have required 50 bushels of oats per acre in order to give the same profit as corn yielding 48 bushels.

A New Poultry Journal

That the poultry instructors and investigators in the country have a poultry journal all their own is perhaps not generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact. This is of perhaps more than passing interest to Illinois poultrymen because the editor of this journal is Prof. L. E. Card of their own state university. According to Professor Card the journal, which is known as Poultry Science, is not designed to compete with the many poultry journals already established. Rather it supplements them by reporting results obtained at various state experiment stations in the United States and Canada. Many of these results are reported in a preliminary article in Poultry Science long before complete bulletin information on the subject is available. Others are of such a nature that they would probably never appear in bulletin form from the stations, but are, nevertheless, of interest and value to practical poultrymen.

Some of the discussions, to be sure, are of interest primarily to persons engaged in college work, but they would help the poultryman keep in touch with what the colleges are doing. Professor Card states that, in his opinion, any poultryman who enjoys reading the results of experiment-station work would be interested in the articles appearing in Poultry Science.

Annual I. A. A. Picnic

Urbana, the home of the University of Illinois, will be the scene of the annual picnic of the Illinois Agricultural Association, and invitations have been sent out from the headquarters of that body to the 84,000 members urging them to attend. The date is to be June 29. As many as 10,000 persons have attended these annual affairs in the past.

While the annual get-together itself will be held in the large Crystal Lake park in Urbana, the visitors will have the added advantage of visiting the University of Illinois and spending as much time as they choose on its campus. The officials of the college of agriculture have announced that the annual "Open House" week, during which time agriculturists from all over the state come to see what the university is doing along agricultural lines, and to see how this or that method of farming will be to their advantage, will also occur that week, June 24-30. Special efforts will be made to have delegations from various sections of the state who plan to attend the picnic to come either a day early and visit the university or plan to stay the day after the picnic in order to make such a visit.

Leading the delegations from each county will be the county adviser, en route to the annual picnic of the advisers of the state. An effort is also being made to have a meeting at the same time at the university of rural preachers of Illinois. This body has long been considering a meeting at the university and it is entirely possible that they will come at this time.

The local papers will carry additional details of the picnic from time to time.

Window Draperies

The three purposes of window draperies are to secure privacy, to soften the light and to lend beauty and charm. Draperies form the harmonizing link between the walls and the furnishings of the room.

"Remember, this is your room, not Mrs. Neighbor's" warn the home economists in suggesting the personality of rooms. "Just because she used rose silk hangings is no signal to you to do likewise. You may need blue denim to complete your room effectively." The question of use must come first in all decorations, according to the college home economics authorities. Keep in tune with the general spirit of the room and its occupants.

That large designs in drapery materials detract from the size of the room is one of the conclusions arrived at by the college women. Small all-over conventional designs are always preferred, they say. The use of color in draperies is resorted to only to improve lighting or to complete a color scheme. Never use color just for the sake of the color itself.

Another important consideration in selecting drapery material is to see that the texture is in harmony with the room and its furnishings.

Get the Chicks Outdoors

"Many chicks are injured each year because an attempt is made to grow them on a 'hothouse' plan," says Prof. L. E. Card of the University of Illinois. The primary purpose of an artificial brooder is, of course, to produce heat for the chicks, but it is essential for their best development that they have an opportunity to get away from the heat of stove and hover. Once a chick has learned to go to the hover when he feels chilly, he can be trusted to find the temperature at which he feels most comfortable.

As soon as the chicks have learned to find their way back to the hover from any part of the house, they should be gotten outdoors. A small run or yard three or four feet across will do at first. This should be enlarged gradually until the chicks are ten days to two weeks old, when it may be taken away entirely and the chicks given free range. The sooner this can be accomplished the more rapidly are the chicks likely to grow. Even if the weather is cold, it is better for chicks to get outdoors than to stay inside continuously. If they have been properly hover-broken they will not suffer but will run in and out during a large part of the day. Under such conditions they will feather out more quickly and hence be able to get along without artificial heat at a younger age than if grown wholly indoors.

Flag Smut of Wheat

Bulletin 242 has just been issued by the Illinois Agricultural Experiment station reporting the results of experiments on the control of flag smut disease of wheat. In the experimental work reported in this bulletin, treating the seed with copper carbonate dust, with copper sulphate-lime (dip) and with formaldehyde was found to be a practical means of control where the fungus spores are carried on the seed.

Experiments with two hundred varieties and strains of wheat have shown some to be immune and a large number highly resistant to flag smut. Folcater, Marvelous, Red May, Red Rock, and Shepherd are among the varieties that have shown immunity during the two or three years they have been in the experimental plots. Harvest Queen (Red Cross and Salzer's Prize Taker) and Red Wave are decidedly susceptible to flag smut.

This bulletin may be obtained by writing to the Illinois Agricultural Experiment station, Urbana, Illinois.

CLOTHES FOR OUTDOORING;

KNITTED TOGS SCORE HIGH

Now that vacations are in sight, clothes for outdooring are uppermost in the minds of women who intend to get all the enjoyment possible out of the good old summer time. They are looking about for things that possess smartness—along with casual style—in which they will feel well enough dressed, and not too much dressed, for almost any summer background. They will not have to look far, for meeting them more than half-way, come all the modish knitted dresses, attractive short coats and jackets made of fiber silks, that contribute so much to the beauty and variety of the season's styles.

Nearly all the dresses are made on straight lines, as shown in the model pictured, and many of them employ a figured pattern embellished with a plain weave which provides panels, insets, collars, sashes and covered buttons. White with a collar in the figured patterns makes the most successful of costumes, worn with white hose and slippers, but sand or beige provide effective backgrounds for color, and footwear to match is plentiful. The worn with a platted skirt is a foremost vogue of the day.

Speaking of novelty attained through knitted stitch, one of the newest ideas reveals an intermingling of a twisted silk in knotted form which has the appearance of bouclé. This is produced in two colors.

Again the unusual is attained in a knitted suit consisting of short coat and skirt, the entire in all-over jacquard pattern, with a narrow binding of plain knitted silk outlining in a tailored way all edges of coat and skirt.

If you are casting about for sug-choice of colors is a matter of becomingness. Such a costume, with a hat in harmony, leaves nothing to be desired.

No matter how varied the requirements, knitted underwear, as styled these days, is equal to the occasion. The more one indulges in knitted garments the more one appreciates their intrinsic merit from every standpoint of color, style, utility.

This season especially emphasizes accomplishment of fanciful design through the medium of knitted stitch. The gamut of ideas is expressed in plaids, stripes, squares, diamonds, mottled backgrounds, all-over jacquard patterns, embroidered fancies and other effects too numerous to itemize.

SONG OF LEGION AUXILIARY

"The Call of the Flag," Given to Organization by Author, Used in Americanism Campaign.

The patriotic appeal of the song, "The Call of the Flag," is to become one of the factors of the Americanism campaign which is being waged by the American Legion Auxiliary. This song, which has been adopted by the Auxiliary as its official composition, has a stirring air and possesses words which create a high enthusiasm among the hearers. The song was first heard by Legionnaires and Auxiliary members at the New Orleans convention, where it received the official endorsement of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Madge King Johnston, national vice-president and chairman of the Americanism committee of the Auxiliary, plans to make wide use of the official song in the work which is being undertaken by the Auxiliary along the lines of Americanism. The song is now being distributed by the national organization of the Auxiliary through its departments and local units. Recent popularization of the song has been assisted by broadcasting from various radio stations throughout the country, particularly on one patriotic holiday, when it was made a part of a special program.

Other ways of putting the composition before the public are being urged by Mrs. Johnston and through her efforts and those of other members of the committee, local units of the Auxiliary have received the endorsement of many civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations throughout the nation for the new song.

Mrs. L. D. Westfelt of New Orleans, who composed the song, turned over the plates, rights and arrangements for publication of future editions to the women of the Auxiliary. She advanced considerable money for the initial work, but freely gave this. Word has just been received by Mrs. Johnston from New Orleans telling of Mrs. Westfelt's death shortly after landing from a trip to Egypt and the Mediterranean sea.

A letter received by Mrs. Johnston told of her pleasure at returning home, and of her intense interest in the progress of the song. Mrs. Johnston, in a message to national headquarters of the Auxiliary says: "We will now feel that our work is a sacred obligation bequeathed to us in fulfilling her desires to aid the boys in this way."

The song may be obtained in sheet music form, orchestrations, band arrangements and on player piano rolls. All rights to the composition have been relinquished by the composer to the Auxiliary.

FORD HOSPITAL DOORS OPEN

Detroit Institution to Admit Disabled War Veterans Who Are in Need of Attention.

A personal plea from Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, to Henry Ford has resulted in hospitalization for 300 disabled war veterans of Michigan.

Ford has agreed to throw open the doors of his big hospital in Detroit to every disabled ex-service man and woman in the state, following Commander Owsley's statement of the hopeless fight the Michigan veterans were making because the government failed to simplify the formal procedure through which applicants for hospitalization are forced to go and which has resulted in long delay in obtaining relief for the war fighters.

After hearing the Legion head's appeal, Mr. Ford immediately instructed the superintendent of the Henry Ford hospital to receive at once any man in need of hospital treatment who could produce proof of war service. The Ford hospital covers 20 acres in the heart of Detroit. It was used as United States general hospital No. 36 during and after the war.

Form Units of "Polar Bears." Members of the detachment of American troops which served in Russia during the World war are forming units of the "Polar Bears." These men include a number of prominent Legionnaires who were on duty in the frozen north while their comrades were in France. They find much to talk about, according to reports of their meetings. Hard tack at $10, cigarettes at $2.50 a package, nights in "pup" tents with the thermometer flitting around 50 below—these are among the topics of the former members of the A. E. F. in Russia. Units of the organization have been formed in Chicago and in Detroit.

GETS FULL PROOF IN HIS OWN CASE

Morlock Lost Weight and Suffered Whole Year Without Relief.

"I have found out from personal experience the merits of Tanlac, and I could talk about it all day and never get tired," is the statement of Alfred R. Morlock well-known advertising man, of 1406 N. Hamlin Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"Before I took Tanlac I was in a badly run-down condition and felt so out of sorts for nearly a year I hardly had energy enough to do my work. My nerves were all frayed, I couldn't sleep soundly, and I suffered terribly with indigestion. I lost my appetite, fell off in weight, had splitting headaches, and was simply in awful shape. "Tanlac gave me a ravenous appetite and my indigestion soon disappeared. I have so much new energy now that the biggest pile of work can't worry me and I have gained ten pounds. Tanlac is a high-class medicine, and I am glad to tell others about it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

WHY TAKE LAXATIVES?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Ravages of the Pine Beetle.

During the last ten years in southern Oregon and northern California, the western pine beetle is estimated to have killed over $3,600,000 worth of merchantable pine timber, or 50 times as much as has been killed by fire in the same time.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

The Custard Cup

By Florence Bingham Livingston

"YES, I KNOW"

SYNOPSIS.—Living in a barn, converted into a dwelling, Mrs. Penfield is manager of an apartment building known as "The Custard Cup," originally "Cluster Court." Her income is derived from laundry work, her chief patron being a Mrs. Horatius Weatherstone, whom she has never seen. Living with her are "Crink" and "Thad," homeless small boys whom she has adopted. They call her "Penzie." Thad tells Penzie a strange man was inquiring for her under her maiden name. A tenant, Mrs. Gussie Bosley, induces Penzie to take charge of a package, which she does with some misgivings. Searching for a refuse dump for things which might be of value, Crink, veteran at the game, encounters a small girl, Lettie, who proves a foeman worthy of his steel. He takes her to Penzie, and Lettie gets adopted into the family. The stranger proves to be Mrs. Penfield's uncle Jerry. He announces he is going to remain in the vicinity of The Custard Cup. Uncle Jerry arranges to occupy the loft above Mrs. Penfield's abode. Uncle Jerry meets Prudence Haggood, no longer young, but attractive, and the two appear to "hit it off" well. Lorenz Percy, young friend of Penzie's, tells her of her engagement to Dick Chase, also a mutual friend.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

She nodded pleasantly. "You're perfectly welcome." The words were hospitable, but not so cordial as Mrs. Penfield herself could have wished. She could not entirely conquer a feeling of irritation upon finding in her house a man whom she instinctively distrusted. A foolish feeling, she thought to herself. She had not a shred of tangible evidence against Frank Bosley, but the repulsion was strong. Her delight in finding a relative here in California had been greatly tempered by the friendship between these two men, unaccountable, persistent.

"Don't hurry because I came," she said, waving the guest back to his seat. "I'm going on into the kitchen in a minute." She opened her shabby leather bag and took out a small box, wrapped in paper. "I'll just give you this, as long as you're home again." She passed it over.

Frank Bosley took the box mechanically and turned it about as if bewildered. "What is it?" There was no doubting his surprise.

"I'm sure I don't know. Valuables, I s'pose. Your wife brought it in for me to keep while she was gone."

The red of swift anger surged into his face. "Gussie brought it in! What in h—l'd she do that for?"

Mrs. Penfield smiled. "I don't know. For safety, was all she said. And of course a burglar would be rather low in his mind 'fore he'd try this place."

His anger mounted steadily, blazing now in his prominent eyes. "D—n! She makes me sick, always getting the jumping jimmies! I'll see that she doesn't bother you any more, Mrs. Penfield."

"Oh, 'tisin't that I count it a bother, Mr. Bosley; but, land, there ain't any great protection here."

"And, great Scott, you carry this"—he turned the box over in his hands—"these rings—or whatever 'tis"—round with you when you go anywhere?"

"No, I hain't never done that before, but going out The Custard Cup altogether— And even so, what if I lost it?"

"I should say!" His words cut the air with violence. "Believe me, I'll fix this!"

Jerry Winston, whose merry eyes had sharpened with alert interest, broke in with a careful drawl. "Ain't you a bit hard on nerves, Bosley? Likely your wife's had a dream or something."

This lightened version seemed to restore Frank Bosley's composure. "Likely," he agreed glibly. "Been reading the newspapers, I presume. Got her mind full of robberies, and thinks she's going to be the next in line."

Jerry Winston nodded. "Worst thing in the world for nerves," he said sadly. "Women need lighter food'n that."

Mrs. Penfield started for the kitchen. Frank Bosley's voice followed her. "I'll be ambling along, Winston. See you again in a day or two."

Mrs. Penfield, emptying the baked beans into the saucepan, shook his head. "Wouldn't that beat you?" she murmured.

She put the saucepan on the stove and went to the back door. Lettie's game was in full swing. There were now ten scraps of humanity, because Thad had been annexed to the party as a family courtesy and was traveling deadhead through its joys. Each one of the ten had been assigned the part of a creature of feathers or fur and was practicing the new character with vociferous spirit. Timmy Catterbox, as Gray Squirrel, was eating an imaginary nut with increasing grace, to the accompaniment of appropriate noises; his little sister, as Hen, was strutting and cackling in a way that would have been illuminating to untrained poultry. Rabbit was represented; also Cat and Dog and Mouse and several others—all small, as Lettie had promised; all active, as one might expect.

Mrs. Penfield, satisfied by her moment of supervision, went back to her supper preparations and the ironing which further utilized the supper fire.

Uncle Jerry tramped through the living-room and paused on his way through the kitchen. Mrs. Penfield was far from understanding why he had come into her home. It had seemed natural enough at first, but the supposition that he wanted to participate in the home life of his own kindred was being rapidly dissipated. He had fitted up the loft with a few pieces of plain furniture and had constructed a reasonable sort of stepladder that made it easily accessible; but Mrs. Penfield was beginning to wonder why he had taken the trouble. He rarely had a meal at Number 47; there were days at a time when The Custard Cup never saw him at all.

Nevertheless, when he came breezily back, bringing some offering of food which he ostentatiously claimed to have secured at a tremendous bargain, brimming with stories of the Oregon woods that delighted the children, full of rough but jolly kindness—then Mrs. Penfield appreciated him without reserve. But there were other times—times when reticence was uppermost, about his absence, his business, his companions. Then she was puzzled and disturbed, even piqued.

"Well, Car'line," he began, "I didn't know you had a safety vault for the neighbors. That's 'bout the last thing I'd expect you to start."

She said nothing.

"Mrs. Bosley must have the figgets," he continued; and as his tone grew lazier his eyes grew keener. "Say, wasn't he mad? I'll bet they've had trouble over that box. It was a box, wasn't it? Does she always bring the same package?"

Mrs. Penfield, testing the heat of the irons, turned in astonishment. "My goodness, Uncle Jerry, how'd it come to intrust you so?"

He shrugged. "Just making conversation. Hasn't nothing else happened to talk about."

"That's so, too," she agreed. "Well, no, 'tain't always the same package. Sometimes it's thin and soft. I guess she's got diff'rent ways of salting down her jewels. Why, are you going off again? I thought mebbe you'd have supper with us tonight."

Gray Squirrel Came Hurting Through the Thin Roof.

"Can't, Car'line. Sorry, but I got to see a man. Heavens, what's going on in your yard?"

Mrs. Penfield explained. She had to lift her voice, because Uncle Jerry had opened the door, and the game, now at its most vocal stage, filled the air with diverse calls and squeaks and clucks. Jerry Winston's footsteps on the board walk that ran around the house were lost in the din.

The animal game was drawing nearer. A zealous participant had discovered his habitat to be in the tree that overhung the lean-to kitchen. By the squeaky calls it was Gray Squirrel. Also, Gray Squirrels leap from branch to branch. Mrs. Penfield set down her iron and started for the door, with the intention of curbing the hazardous realism, when Crash—Splash—Gray Squirrel came hurtling through the thin roof between two supports and landed in a tub of soaking clothes. During the descent he instantaneously forsook the cluckings of the wild and shot out his furry personality as the parachute drops from the balloon. He became all at once a human baby, full of human shrieks and screams, bent on airing his troubles to a listening neighborhood.

"My goodness land!" Mrs. Penfield made a dive for the foundering, yelling Timmy and extracted him as lightly and swiftly as if he had been a breadcrumb on the tablecloth. On the instant a mob of children poured into the kitchen, not so much actuated by fear as eager to obtain choice posts of observation from which the downfall of Timmy might be fully enjoyed. Shakespeare knew what he was about when he wrote tragedy for the delight of audiences.

Lettie stormed through her group of followers, as a tornado plows its way through a populous landscape.

"By Jiminy!" she shouted. "Wouldn't that jiggle your pins? There goes one cent. I won't never get paid for Timmy."

"Lettie, get me the blanket off my bed. And hurry! Hush, Timmy, dear; you ain't hurt a speck. We'll have you warm and dry in no time." With the protesting Timmy in one arm, Mrs. Penfield rummaged in the cupboard for towels.

Lettie switched back with the blanket, her resentment flaming higher than ever. She snapped her teeth at Timmy.

"You little stupid! Don't you know a roof's to keep you in? Instead of leaking you in? By jingoes, s'pose Mrs. Catterbox won't pay me for Susie, ether. That makes two cents gone. Ain't that luck?"

"Lettie, be still. Stop thinking 'bout money when you 'most broke a feller's neck. Now clear out, children. Land, if I wasn't so busy, I'd spank every one of you for enjoying yourselves 'cause Timmy here fell into misfortune. Step lively. I got to have elbow room—and sudden."

The company, thus explicitly unwanted, initiated a fade-out. Lettie snatched them vigorously.

"Run along, babies," she commanded. "You're going to play hop-scotch in the driveway—darned if you ain't! I'm going to have that seven cents or bust." She turned back and stuck her nose into the kitchen. "Say, Penzie, what you going to do with him?" A scornful twirk of her thumb indicated the suffering Timmy.

"Dry him out," replied Mrs. Penfield tersely. "We can't return him soaked. I expected to iron tonight, but I didn't s'pose it'd be Timmy. And now, Lettie, you remember to keep all them kids on the ground. Moreover, you'll have a quiet little talk when things clear up a bit."

"Yes'm." Lettie gulped from the depths of a great comprehension; then flew to the pursuit of whatever pennies remained.

CHAPTER VIII

Sobsuds.

It was a regular thing for Mrs. Penfield to be called to Number 41. Mrs. Sanders lived there, alone except for a roomer; and during the few months since she had come to The Custard Cup, she had summoned Mrs. Penfield several times when overwrought nerves had brought her to a climax of suffering. Her neighbors had little patience with these attacks. Because of the weeping and lamentations which were the outer symbols of her distress, they had nicknamed her Sobsuds. And she knew it.

Sensitive to an attitude which she interpreted as unsympathetic, Mrs. Sanders turned for comfort to Mrs. Penfield as the only one of her neighbors who could soothe her into equilibrium.

It was Monday, and Mrs. Penfield was in the midst of washing; but when the summons came, she made all haste to respond, her office being that of the physician who is called in an emergency.

She found Mrs. Sanders in her small living-room, pacing rapidly back and forth, beating the air with her clenched fists.

They exchanged no word of greeting. Mrs. Penfield entered casually, as if she had happened to think of it in passing. Mrs. Sanders gave her a glance of recognition, but said nothing.

"It's colder today," remarked Mrs. Penfield in a matter-of-fact tone. "Seems a mite like fall if you ain't in the sun. What do you say if I make us some tea to drink while we're chatting?"

Mrs. Sanders did not reply, but the taut muscles in her face relaxed the merest trifle. Mrs. Penfield went into the kitchen and poured boiling water over the hops she had brought. She found a tray and arranged her service daintily, as if the occasion were purely social. She was profoundly sorry for Mrs. Sanders, whose nerves, she understood, had been shattered by grief until at times they became uncontrollable. She filled a bag with hot water and went back.

"Keep your hands on this when you can," she advised briskly. "You can hold it in your lap while we're drinking this here tea. Yes, I know the tea's hot, but you can sip it. My, it tastes good, don't it?"

Mrs. Sanders finished her tea and put down the cup. "I'm sorry," she whispered, with quivering lips, "but I couldn't stay here by myself. I got to thinking and I— Oh!" She sprang to her feet, tossing the hot-water bag to the floor, and took up her pacing again. She was a small woman, with a thin, white face and gray eyes that at the moment were burning with rebellion.

"Oh, I can't stand it; I can't stand it," she cried aloud, beating her hands together. "I get to thinking, and it—"

Mrs. Penfield had risen, too. "Yes, I know," she interrupted quietly. "It shuts off your breath, and your blood runs cold. It makes creation seem big and cruel and against you."

Mrs. Sanders wheeled and fixed her with a strange look, as if she could not believe that it was her neighbor who had spoken. "Yes, like that, but it's so much worse being by myself. It's different with you. You got the children. They keep you going."

"I'm happy—but it's a different kind of happiness."

GOOD THINGS WE MAY ENJOY

Liver is a dish which most families serve "once in a while," but usually fried. Try this method of the Italian woman: Slice the liver as for frying and cook at a simmering temperature for 15 to 20 minutes in salted water. Drain and chop fine, mix with a tablespoonful of chopped onion (or a clove of garlic is delicious if you are trained to appreciate it), salt and pepper to taste. Into the bottom of a casserole place a half cupful of well-washed rice, spread over this one chopped carrot, then the liver and the liquor in which it was cooked; there should be two cupfuls; two tablespoonfuls of butter are then spread over the contents of the dish and bake for sufficient time to cook the rice. Just before taking from the oven add one-half cupful of cream and a tablespoonful of parsley sprinkled over the top. Remove the cover and let stand in the oven for five minutes, then serve.

Beef and Barley Stew.—Take two cupfuls of barley, wash and cover with four cupfuls of boiling water and soak three hours. Turn the barley and water into a casserole, add one pound of beef cut in serving-sized pieces, one carrot and one onion finely sliced. Season with salt and paprika, cover and bake four hours.

Cornish Pasty.—Make a good, rich biscuit dough, roll half an inch thick and line a deep pie pan—the size of the family will determine the amount of meat and vegetables needed for the meal. Into the pastry-lined dish place half-inch cubes of round steak with plenty of fat or suet, sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with a layer of sliced potatoes, a few slices of turnip or rutabaga, an onion or two, season well, cover with a top crust, making vents for the steam, adding a tablespoonful of water, or none at all if the vegetables are fresh and full of water, and bake slowly for two hours. When the vegetables are tender remove from the oven and wrap the pasty with a large cloth to steam for ten to fifteen minutes; the steam flavors the crust making it much more palatable.

Apples in Maple Sirup.—Cut eight apples into halves and remove the cores, put into a saucepan with one cupful of maple sirup, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half cupfuls of water. Bake until the sirup is thick. Serve cold with whipped cream. Pears are delicious baked in this way using lemon juice, butter and sugar instead of the sirup.

The moon and the stars are commonplace things. The flower that blooms and the bird that sings; But sad were the world, and dark our lot. If the flower faded and the sun shone not. And God who sees each separate soul. Out of commonplace lives makes a beautiful whole.

—Susan Coolidge.

SPRING VEGETABLES

Perhaps there is some vegetable better than tender well-cooked asparagus, dressed with a generous allowance of butter, perfectly seasoned and hot, on crisp well-buttered toast; if so it may be a dish of tender sweet green peas simmered to the 'nth degree of delectability and buttered lavishly; both are dishes fit for the epicure, and he who does not enjoy them is indeed hard to suit.

Asparagus Soup.—Cook two cupfuls of asparagus in three cupfuls of water; when tender rub through a puree strainer, add one pint of white sauce, using two cupfuls of milk thickened with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour well-cooked together; season with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, a few dashes of cayenne and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of white pepper, with a teaspoonful of sugar. Boil up once and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each cup and with crisp, thinly-shaved bread well-browned in the oven.

Chicken Smothered in Asparagus.—Cook a fowl until very tender and divide into eight pieces of serving size. Roll in seasoned flour and brown lightly in sweet fat. Make toast cut in good-sized rounds, butter them and lay in a shallow serving dish, place a piece of chicken on each round and surround with hot cooked asparagus which has been cut in half-inch lengths. Pour over all a hot white sauce to which beaten egg yolk has been added after taking from the fire. Stir rapidly to prevent curdling and garnish with toast points.

Puree of Peas.—Boil four cupfuls of peas until tender in salted water with an onion, a bunch of parsley and two sprigs of mint. Rub through a colander and return to the fire, adding one cupful of strong stock; season with salt and pepper and one teaspoonful of sugar.

UNCLE SAM'S SPECIAL TAX
This is Month for the Payments to Internal Revenue Department Men

Attention of taxpayers is called to the fact that June is the month for the payment of several special taxes to the Internal Revenue Department. Many of these taxes are payable in yearly periods and are easily overlooked. The failure to get the returns in the hands of the collector or a deputy by the time required places the taxpayer in the delinquent class and penalties are assessed. The deputies in Division No. 8, with headquarters in Kane, DuPage, DeKalb and Kendall counties are ready to take care of the work at any time agreeable to the taxpayer and cooperation of the public is requested.

The payments which are due on or before June 15 are the 1922 corporation tax and the second payment of the individual income tax for 1923, the return which was filed before March 15 of this year. Capital stock returns for 1923 must be filed before July 1, 1923.

The special stamp taxes, which are due and payable this month are for those classes of taxpayers who require special stamps. This includes dealers in oleomargarine, wholesale and retail, colored and uncolored oleo sawbrokers, proprietors of theatres, museums, concert halls and moving picture houses; circuses; tobacco and cigar factories, all who handle narcotics in any form and a number of other businesses which are not common in this district.

Special attention is called to the fact that all proprietors of soda fountain or soft drink places, theatres, circuses, public exhibition, dance hall, open air park, etc., where registration is necessary must renew their registration this month. There is no tax on this registration but there is a heavy penalty for failure to have a registry stamp. Those who are starting in business anew must register within ten days of the time they make their start. These stamps are not transferable and if the registrant goes out of business before the expiration of the year he must not file the collector.

The office of Division No. 8, Earl T. Weeks, chief, is located on the second floor of the post office building, Aurora. Other deputies can be found at Elgin, Wheaton, DeKalb and Yorkville. Mr. Weeks wishes it known that his corps is at the service of the public and wishes to give all assistance possible.

A LESSON FROM SWITZERLAND

The analysis of the Swiss government railway situation by Raymond Fendrick of The Tribune Foreign News Service, published in the Sunday issue, ought to be pondered by discontented Americans who think government ownership is the cure for faults of the American system.

Switzerland is a country whose high level of intelligence, population density, business activity and geographical situation ought to insure a prosperous and efficient railway service. In 1901-'03, the privately owned railways were consolidated and taken over by the government on the theory that unified management by the government would improve the transportation system of the country. The contrary has occurred.

Mr. Fendrick finds that a council of fifty-five state functionaries has been managing the system, but lately this body has been reduced to fifteen.

teen. But employees have multiplied from 25,000 and 37,000 and a majority are now political appointees. Management has deteriorated, rates, both passenger and freight, have gone up. First class passenger rates are equivalent to five cent a mile, American; second class, over three cents, and third class, over two. The original debt has more than doubled.

This is in Switzerland, where conditions are much more favorable to government utilities than in the enormous expanse of the United States. If the American people want inefficient transportation at an exorbitant cost, plus a plague of bureaucratic politics on a gigantic scale, they will adopt government ownership and operation of the railroads. That would cost the average American, farmer, workman, clerk, more than any experiment in radicalism we can think of short of bolshevism.

E. W. DICKSON DIED SATURDAY

News was received of the sudden death of Edgar W. Dickson, which occurred at his home in Hampshire on Saturday evening, June 9, at 6 o'clock. He had been in his usual good health, considering his advanced age of seventy-five years, and was suddenly and without warning stricken with heart failure, causing his death. He was born in Binghamton, N. Y., February 5, 1849, and came with his parents to Illinois in 1850, settling near the village of Hampshire in which vicinity he had since resided, and where the greater part of his life had been successfully engaged in farming. Some years ago he retired, and went to Hampshire to reside. He had been active in the affairs of his community and as one of the valued pioneers of that vicinity will be greatly missed.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Smith Dickson, and two sons, Gerald E. Dickson residing on the old homestead, and Floyd H. Dickson of Sycamore.

Funeral services were held in Hampshire under the direction of the Hampshire lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he had been an active member for many years.

BIG DEMAND FOR FORD CARS

The general prosperity now existing throughout the country is strikingly registered in the demand for Ford cars and trucks.

Dealer requirements for May, just announced at the office of the Ford Motor Company, call for 300,000 cars and trucks, and orders making up this great total come from every section of the nation.

The company's huge manufacturing facilities are being utilized to the utmost in an endeavor to increase the daily output so that dealer's orders may be filled as quickly as possible. The proportion of increase in the demand for Ford products is about equally divided between commercial centers and rural communities, reflecting not only better conditions in the cities, but likewise a growth of prosperity among the farmers.

A feature of the dealer requirements is the large number of Ford one-ton trucks. Sales of Ford trucks have been mounting every month this year, establishing new high marks and June promises to bring another record-breaker. While business concerns everywhere are daily turning to the use of the Ford truck in increasing numbers, the sales records show that farmers are availing themselves of the advantages and economy of motor truck transportation to a greater extent than ever before.

On June 23 the Charter Grove Community club will hold its third annual picnic in Jesse Buzzell's woods. There will be contests, races and a ball game. Everyone from anywhere who wants to come is cordially invited. Please bring sandwiches and dishes for self and a dish of food to pass. Coffee and lemonade will be served. Come early!

$8,000,000 in a year were kept in private safe deposit boxes in one of the largest banks in the country. This calculation was made from the cash being taken from these boxes and brought to the investment department of the bank.

A SAFE Deposit Box is designed to keep securities, jewelry, plate, etc. but money secreted in this manner makes the country that much poorer and restricts the power of a bank in a community to benefit its people. Cash in a commercial account here is as safe as in a deposit box and more useful in every way.

Germany's New Offer of Annuities Is Not Satisfactory to France and Belgium.

SHE ASKS NEW CONFERENCE

Treasury Order Applies Dry Law Rigorously to Foreign Ships—Smith Now Wet Democrats' First Choice for Presidency—America's Qualified Victory in Opium Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WHAT is your opinion of "daylight saving," and of the efforts in various states, sometimes successful, to prohibit it by statute?

GERMANY almost surrendered last week, but still did not come near enough to surrendering to suit France and Belgium. Chancellor Cuno submitted to the allies and the United States a new set of propositions, asking that another reparations conference be called which, after considering the estimate of its resources which Germany would proffer, should fix the total sum to be paid. Cuno promised Germany would abide by the decision rendered. In his note the chancellor suggested that Germany could pay annuities not in excess of 1,500,000,000 gold marks and named these guarantees to be placed back of such annuities.

First, monopolies on tobacco and brandy and a tax on sugar and luxuries plus a customs revenue to the extent of 4,000,000 gold marks ($1,000,000) yearly.

Second, a pledge of 500,000,000 gold marks ($125,000,000) yearly from the earnings of the railways, to secure which railway bonds with a total value of 10,000,000,000 gold marks ($2,500,000,000) with interest at 5 per cent will be offered.

Third, a pledge of Germany's industrial and agricultural wealth to a similar amount, plus a new tax on material values, which is estimated to net 100,000,000 gold marks ($25,000,000) yearly.

Cuno's note made no mention of the Ruhr or passive resistance and said nothing of politics, international guarantees or a moratorium.

To this note France's reply, at this writing unofficial, is that the new German proposals will not be even examined by France until passive resistance in the occupied regions has ceased, and that the Ruhr will not be evacuated until Germany pays the reparations. Belgium's adherence to this was obtained by Premier Poincare in a lively conference in Brussels, but Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspard induced Poincare to try hard to have a combined and identical reply to Cuno made by the allies. Poincare also outlined new coercive measures to be applied in the Ruhr and the Rhineland, and Belgium agreed to these with the understanding that she should send no more troops. These measures include the establishment of an air-tight cordon cutting off the occupied areas from the rest of Germany, the wholesale expulsions of persons refusing to work or interfering with the operations of the forces of occupation, the creation of new money, the confiscation of further stocks and renewed attempts at the operation of certain kinds of industry.

Because the Krupps have not paid the 40 per cent coal tax imposed by the French, their steel mills and furnaces at Engers and Neuveuil were seized on Wednesday and the French officials said unless the tax of twenty billion marks were paid the properties would be sold at auction.

STRICT conformity with the decision of the Supreme court is demanded by the Treasury department in its new regulations concerning liquor on ships. All intoxicating beverages are barred from the territorial waters of the United States, the order going into effect at midnight of June 9. The department officials could find no way of avoiding conflict with foreign laws and so determined that the court's construction of the prohibition law should be rigidly applied.

As regards the exemptions accorded, the regulations have set down restrictions that require permits and reports of a character and quantity sufficient to give the government a complete check on all liquor thus brought into the barred zone or landed on American soil. No limitation is prescribed for the amount of medicinal liquor which any craft may possess in American waters, the regulations stating only that a "reasonable" quantity may be retained for such nonbeverage purposes until the master of the vessel has had "a fair opportunity to obtain either a permit or certificate of medicinal need."

Many foreign governments already have made formal protests against this application of the Eighteenth amendment to their vessels, but it is not clear what they can do further in the matter. Of course there has been a lot of talk of retaliatory measures, but it isn't likely any such will be adopted. French shipowners are obliged to give their crews a daily allowance of wine or to pay them the value of the wine in money. The general secretary of the French Marine Workers' union says the members will be satisfied to take the cash and let the wine go. Prime Minister Baldwin told the British house of commons that the government did not intend that a vessel entering the territorial waters of a country was not subject to the jurisdiction of that country, but that as a matter of international comity such jurisdiction should not be generally exercised except to restrain acts likely to lead to a disturbance of public order. He added that public order could not be endangered by the presence of liquor under seal in American territorial waters.

BECAUSE Gov. Al Smith signed the act repealing the New York prohibition enforcement law the Canadian rum runners are reported to be flooding the Empire state with booze. The federal dry officials there, however, have increased their activities and, after they had conferred with the state officials, it was announced that the police would aid in the enforcement of the Volstead act just as they did before the state law was enacted.

In Connecticut and Illinois efforts to repeal or modify the state enforcement laws were foiled by the dries. Whether Governor Smith by signing the repealer improved or ruined his chances for the Democratic presidential nomination depends wholly on the point of view. At any rate he is now the first choice of the wet faction of his party. Many believe that McAdoo will be compelled to moisten his hitherto bone dry attitude. Underwood had been the leading candidate of the wets. Now they are also being offered Governor Sizer of New Jersey and Governor Ritchie of Maryland.

ELBERT H. GARY'S arguments in favor of the 12-hour day in the steel industry, in his report made to and adopted by the American Iron and Steel Institute, are condemned as unworthy and untenable in a statement issued by representatives of fifty million Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews, comprising the Federal Council of Churches. Says the statement: "The report of the steel committee is a definite rejection of the proposal for the abolition of the long day. The public demand in response to which the committee was appointed is set aside as a 'sentiment' which was not created or endorsed by the workmen themselves."

"The testimony of competent investigators, including eminent engineering societies, is ignored, and the conclusion is put forth without supporting data that the 12-hour day 'has not of itself been an injury to the employees, physically, mentally, or morally.' "This statement is made in face of the fact that the committee of stockholders of the United States Steel corporation, appointed in 1912 to investigate this matter, expressed the opinion "that a 12-hour day of labor, followed continuously by any group of men for any considerable number of years, means a decreasing of the efficiency and lessening of vigor and virility."

THE Chinese cabinet resigned in a body Wednesday and went to Tientsin, leaving President Li Yuan-hung alone in Peking to run the government. The ministers issued a statement accusing the president of acting unconstitutionally in the conduct of public affairs, but their resignation is believed really to be a part of a conspiracy to drive Li from office.

ACCORDING to decisions rendered last week by the Supreme court of the United States, the laws passed by the various states prohibiting instruction in schools in other languages than English are unconstitutional. Justices Holmes and Sutherland dissented. The question was decided on constitutional grounds and few have come forward to suggest seriously the soundness of the decision. But there are many Americans who hope some other way can be found to remedy the conditions, existing in numerous parochial and other schools, against which the state laws were directed.

GEORGES BARBOT, the French aviator who brought the Dewoitine flyer plane over to show us how cheaply we could fly, made a flight from Long Island to West Point and back, without landing. Then he started for Washington but on the day a storm drove him close to ground, his motor stopped and his little plane crashed into a tree. The machine was not seriously injured, but curious-looking vandals stole so many parts that it could not be repaired. Barbot promises to bring two more flyers from France.

SHRINERS had a great week in Washington, with magnificent parades, receptions and other entertainments. President Harding, himself a noble, had a prominent part in the proceedings and delivered some addresses. Conrad Victor Dykeman of Brooklyn, N. Y., was promoted to the office of imperial potentate, and Kansas City was selected for the convention of 1924.

ACCORDING to a report made public by the Treasury department, only twenty-one persons admitted their incomes for 1921 were more than a million dollars. This is the smallest number in that class since the federal income tax was established. The number of incomes of nearly every class showed a decline. Those in the class of $500,000 to $1,000,000 dropped from 123 in 1920 to 63 in 1921. In all classes above $100,000 a year the number decreased from 3,649 in 1920 to 2,352 in 1921. The number of personal returns filed was 6,662,176, representing 6.28 per cent of the population, and the per capita net income reported was $184.65. For the preceding year the proportion of the population filing returns was 6.85 per cent, and the per capita income reported was $223.87.

MINISTER GREW in Lausanne has been busy with Ismet Pasha drawing up the peace treaty between the United States and Turkey. The pact contains the extraordinary provision that the Turkish government shall collect customs duties ranging from 10 to 50 per cent on the $5,000,000 worth of food and other supplies which the American people send annually to the destitute people of Turkey. The same provision appears in the treaties with the allies, so Mr. Grew had no ground for protest.

ELBERT H. GARY'S arguments in favor of the 12-hour day in the steel industry, in his report made to and adopted by the American Iron and Steel Institute, are condemned as unworthy and untenable in a statement issued by representatives of fifty million Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews, comprising the Federal Council of Churches. STATE CAN'T FIX WAGES, DECISION

U. S. Supreme Court Delivers Body Blow to Kansas Industrial Plan.

RULING IS GIVEN BY TAFT

Declares Act Conflicts With the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution by Taking Away Property Rights.

Washington, June 11.—The Kansas Industrial Relations court was dealt a heavy blow when the Supreme Court of the United States, in an opinion delivered by Chief Justice Taft, declared the tribunal was without power to fix wages in the plant of the Charles Wolf Packing company.

Chief Justice Taft declared that the act creating the Industrial Relations court conflicted with the Fourteenth amendment of the Constitution by depriving the company of its property and liberty of contract without due process of law.

While the opinion of the court dealt with a specific case, it is the view of lawyers here who studied the decision that the words of Chief Justice Taft draw the teeth of the Kansas court.

"It has never been supposed, since the adoption of the Constitution, that the business of the butcher, or the baker, the tailor, the wood chopper, the mining operator or the miner was clothed with such a public interest that the price of his product or his wages could be fixed by state regulation," said Mr. Chief Justice Taft.

"It is true that in the days of the early common law an omnipotent parliament did regulate prices and wages as it chose, and occasionally a colonial legislature sought to exercise the same power; but, since the adoption of our Constitution, one does not devote one's property or business to the public use or clothe it with a public interest merely because one makes commodities for and sells to the public in the common callings of which those mentioned above are instances.

"If, as, in effect, contended by counsel for the state [of Kansas], the common callings are clothed with a public interest by a mere legislative declaration, which necessarily authorizes full and comprehensive regulation within legislative discretion, there must be a revolution in the relation of government to general business. This will be running the public interest into the ground, to use a phrase of Mr. Justice Bradley when characterizing a similarly extreme contention. It will be impossible to reconcile such result with the freedom of contract and of labor secured by the Fourteenth amendment."

One Thing He Knew.
"Now tell me, sir," demanded counsel for the defense, "and mind what you are saying. Do you assert that you were wounded in the melee?" The witness pursed his lips obstinately. "I never said where I was wounded," he said. "It might have been in the melee, or again it mightn't. All I know is that he hit me."

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

commence, their clients both withdrew their pleas of "not guilty" and entered pleas of "guilty" to the charge, before Judge Irwin in the circuit court of DeKalb county.

Judge Irwin explained carefully to the defendant Albert Ernest Reece 33 years of age the effect and consequences of the plea of guilty and sentenced him to the State Penitentiary at Joliet, Illinois for a period of from one to ten years. George Reece, the 17 year old brother of Albert Ernest Reece after entering his plea of guilty filed a petition for probation which was referred to J. E. Matteson, Probation Officer. Under the law George had a right after entering his plea of guilty to throw himself upon the mercy of the court and ask for another chance, which the court after a hearing and on report of the probation officer can either allow or disallow and sentence the defendant on his plea of guilty, as the court chooses. Judge Irwin explained at length to George Reece the effect of probation and the terms which can be imposed upon one placed upon probation, such as reporting every month making restitution and other terms. The court told the defendant that if placed on probation he could not consider himself free of the charge as by his plea of guilty he admitted his guilt but that probation was only granted in a case where the court had reasonable ground to believe that the person could be reformed and that the interest of society could be subserved. Whether or not George will secure his release on probation will be decided by Judge Irwin as soon as the Probation Officer makes his report.

On Monday, June 11, 1923, before Judge Irwin in the circuit court Samuel A. Milligan, formerly Justice of the Peace of the city of DeKalb was arraigned by State's Attorney Poust upon the charge of confidence game, as charged in the indictment voted against him by the June grand jury. Milligan was brought over from the county jail where he has been since his arrest last March in default of bail and appeared together with A. G. Kennedy of DeKalb as his attorney.

On being asked by the court what plea he wished to enter, Milligan who is almost 65 years old showing visibly the effect of incarceration in jail replied that it was a plea of guilty to the charge. Attorney Kennedy, representing him immediately filed a petition to release Milligan upon probation. The petition was referred to Probation Officer J. E. Matteson, for investigation and report and will be acted on by the court at some future date. Milligan is held on charges of embezzlement and confidence game. A verdict for the sum of $20,969.83 and cigarettes being served.

Case of Paw Paw township against Charles V. Weddell of DeKalb by a jury before Judge Fulton in the circuit on Thursday evening, June 7, 1923.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

cates with his fellowmen without any wires whatsoever.

Radio is the abbreviation of radiotelegraph, radiotelephone and radiophone. A radio set either radiates a wave or receives a radiated wave. Thus radio is the preferable name.

About two years ago broadcasting as a word applied to wireless telegraphy was not used very much. Nearly all commercial and governmental work was carried on in code. When broadcasting began the term "radio" was applied instead of wireless. Here is how the error originated. Code is thought to be sent from a wireless station while broadcasting of voice from a radio station.

Radio may be applied to both code and voice transmission. There is, however, a difference between radiophone or radiotelephone and radiotelegraph. When we speak of telephone or phone we think of talking or broadcasting of music, speeches, etc. When speaking of radiotelegraph we mean those stations which communicate in code.

Code and voice may be transmitted by the same station using exactly the same set by connecting a buzzer in place of a phone transmitter or microphone. It would be foolish to tell a friend that you are hearing a radio station when you hear a certain station broadcasting music and then five minutes later you receive this same station which is now sending code and tell your friend you are receiving a wireless station. Please do not differentiate between radio and wireless as it is impossible. (F. O. G.)

EUROPEAN CORN BORER

The European corn borer, common in parts of Europe and Asia, was found in eastern Massachusetts in 1917 and is now known to be present in eastern New York and in a strip along both the north and south shores of Lake Erie, extending westward into Ohio and Michigan. It cannot be eradicated nor can its natural spread be prevented.

The larvae pass the winter in stalks of corn or the stems of weeds and other plants. In the Massachusetts area the first brood of larvae works in the corn during June and July, and the second brood from August to the end of the season. In the other areas there is but one brood, lasting from the middle of June to the close of the season.

Sweet corn is injured more severely than field corn. In Massachusetts the growing of sweet corn is being abandoned and in the heavily infested parts of the Canadian area sweet corn has become an unprofitable crop. There are, however, cases of very severe injury to field corn, especially the fine varieties. In the other areas the insect has not yet become sufficiently abundant to cause any considerable damage.

What May We Expect in Illinois

The insect will certainly reach Illinois within a few years if it has not already done so. It may be single brooded, double brooded or even triple brooded in the southern part of the State. The probabilities are that it will be double brooded, heavy losses to crops can probably be prevented by proper control measures, but if doubt to prevent them, and these losses will probably result in spite of all efforts to prevent them, and these losses will undoubtedly extend to other crops, since where the insect is double brooded it is known to infest more than 200 varieties of weeds and economic plants. (Essential means of control include the destruction of weeds and the disposal of stalks in the fall by burning, plowing under or using for ensilage.)

The Department of Agriculture, Division of Plant Industry, cooperating with the Department of Registration and Education, urges every one to be on the lookout for the insect and to send, after dipping them in boiling water) any specimens which resemble it to P. A. Glenn, Chief Plant Inspector, or W. P. Flint, State Entomologist, Urbana, Illinois, for examination.

SOY BEANS FOR SHORTAGE

That farmers of Boone county should plan to make up a shortage of hay by raising soybeans for their dairy cattle the coming season is the urgent advice of J. C. Kline, farm adviser at the head of the Farm Bureau of Boone county, who is in a position to know the condition of the hay land of this county. Now is the time to act in this matter, according to Mr. Kline, who says:

"High prices for hay next winter and spring is predicted without a doubt. Very few good fields of hay can be found in Boone county. This shortage of hay is nothing to be alarmed about provided each dairyman takes heed now and makes plans to provide a suitable substitute. A dairy farmer needs a hay that contains a large percentage of protein. Millet, Sudan grass and oats are all very poor hay crops for dairy cows. Good oat straw will produce about as much milk as the above.

"The soybean is the only crop that can be sown between May 25th. and June 10th. in Boone county and produce hay that is equal to alfalfa in feeding value. It is a crop that is absolutely certain regardless of soil and weather conditions. It is, however, like any other crop in producing quality, the richer the soil and the more rainfall the better the crop. Ordinary Illinois men who have grown soybeans in Boone county have harvested from one to two tons per acre. The men who have tried soybeans as a hay crop claim that the cows produced more milk than any hay they have ever fed.

"In conclusion my advice to dairy-men is this: 'Don't buy hay for your dairy cows, don't feed timothy, straw or non-leguminous crops to your dairy cows but plan now to supply your cows this fall and winter with a leguminous hay and if you do not have clover or alfalfa the soybeans is the only substitute.'"

Supremacy Through Pressure.

Pressure has often been the making of men. They are not at their best unless compelled to keep up to their limitations. The remarkable thing about that is the more you move up the greater becomes the capacity for moving. It's just pressure making its way.
