Lovers of choice beef will be pleased to learn that G. F. Kezar has a dozen steers which he is fattening for his market. Meanwhile he is cutting up the choicest beef that money can buy.

—A. G. Bartley of Magic, Pa., writes; I feel it a duty of mine to inform you and the public that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me of a very bad case of eczema. It also cured my boy of a running sore on his leg. F T Robinson, Genoa; L C Shaffer, Kingston.

An "At Home" will be given by the "Ys" at the residence of A. B. Cleford tomorrow evening. A hearty invitation is extended to all, and all should accept the invitation, as a good time is promised. It will be entirely under the supervision of the young ladies, and we all know what the outcome must eventually be.

The presence of several special police on the streets last Thursday night had a salutary effect on the general peacefulness of things. The usual disgraceful state of affairs generally noticeable the morning following Halloween, was missed. Now if Mayor Hutchison will continue on in the good work and administer a lesson to those young hoodlums, who make life a burden for respectable people who attend entertainments given in the opera house, a grateful people would rise and call him thrice blessed.

—It's just as easy to try One Minute Cough Cure as anything else. It's easier to cure a severe cough or cold with it. Let your next purchase for a cough be One Minute Cough Cure. Better medicine; better results; better try it. F T Robinson, Genoa; L C Shaffer, Kingston.

While Elgin and other neighboring schools are closed on account of the prevalence of diphtheria, scarlet fever and other infectious diseases, Genoa's school enrollment is larger than ever. We have many things to be thankful for. Since typhoid fever has left us our people are enjoying good health, but it is only with the best of care that the prevailing disease now surrounding us can be kept out. Drinking water should by all means, be boiled, the lowness of the wells making the water almost unfit for use.

—Nothing so distressing as a hacking cough. Nothing so foolish as to suffer from it. Nothing so dangerous if allowed to continue. One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief. F T Robinson, Genoa; L C Shaffer, Kingston.

While Dr. Billig was out driving Tuesday behind that fleet footed horse of his, one of the cart wheels gave way, throwing him and Mayor Hutchison, who was with him, to the ground. Talk about the speed of meteors and snails, you ought to have seen that horse go. It went at a rate that would put to blush chain lightning itself, cleared a five board fence, jumped a thirteen foot gutter, kicked up more dust than the Genoa water works could settle in a week, and after covering a good half mile, pulled up in front of Dr. Robinson's barn, in just four seconds from the start.

Diarrhoea should be stopped promptly. It soon becomes chronic. De Witt's Colic & Cholera Cure is effective, safe and certain. Hundreds of testimonials bear witness to the virtue of this great medicine. It can always be depended upon, its use saves time and money. F T Robinson, Genoa, L C Shaffer, Kingston.

The yellow express wagon without the familiar form of Frank Swan thereon will seem a novelty to our people, yet such will soon be the case, he having sold his business to Jesse Evans. The sale includes the mail and express contracts and the rolling stock and horses. For eight years Frank has ever been at his post and has served the people with a faithfulness seldom seen. During that time he has with commendable forethought laid by a comfortable competency which is begrudged him by none. He has made a host of friends who wish him continued prosperity in whatever he may undertake. Frank is justly appreciative of the patronage and favors extended to him in the past and extends his heartiest thanks for the same. He bespeaks the same treatment for his successor.

GETS $3,000,000 MORE.

John D. Rockefeller Makes Another Donation to University of Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Three million dollars were placed within the control of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago Saturday by John D. Rockefeller.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER.

Mr. Rockefeller to the University of Chicago. This enormous sum is divided into eight gifts, which were made as follows:

May, 1889.....	$ 600,000
September, 1890.....	1,000,000
February, 1892.....	1,000,000
December, 1892.....	1,000,000
May, 1893.....	150,000
July, 1894.....	500,000
December, 1894.....	175,000
November, 1895.....	3,000,000
Total.....	$7,425,000

By the terms of Mr. Rockefeller's gift $1,000,000 is tendered unconditionally for endowment purposes. The other $2,000,000 is given provided the university can raise an equivalent sum between now and the year 1900 from outside sources. The board of trustees, however, has not the slightest doubt of its ability to meet this requirement, and feels that the $2,000,000 are already its own.

Failure on the part of the university to secure the sum named does not, however, invalidate the pledge of Mr. Rockefeller so far as his $2,000,000 clause is concerned. He, on the other hand, agrees to forward installments on that proposition "in amounts equivalent to the contributions of others in cash or its equivalent, not hitherto promised, as the same shall be received by the university."

MADE A CARDINAL.

The Pope Confers This Honor on Mgr. Satolli.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Mgr. Satolli, papal delegate to the United States, has been made a cardinal by the pope. The berretta will be imposed by Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore early in December.

Rome, Nov. 1.—It is stated here that Mgr. Satolli will probably remain in Washington for some time after he is raised to the dignity of cardinal, with the title of pro-delegate apostolic. His successor has not yet been selected.

A Town Burned.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 4.—The whole town of Walcott Mills, Rice county, with the exception of two dwellings, was wiped out by a conflagration beginning at 10:30 Sunday morning. The fire departments of both Faribault and Northfield were called out, but owing to a high wind, neither was able to check the flames to any extent. The chief loss was the mills of the Sheffield Bros., one of whom is mayor of Faribault. The mills alone were valued at $150,000, with an insurance of $81,000. Fourteen buildings were consumed. Five cars of flour standing on a spur of the Milwaukee track were also burned. The mills were the best equipped of any in southern Minnesota. They were 20,000 barrels behind in their orders and employed nearly 100 men.

Hatch Represents Hawaii.

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—Honolulu advices of October 26, per steamer Australia, say that Francis M. Hatch, minister of foreign affairs, has been appointed Hawaiian minister to Washington, in place of W. R. Castle, who recently accepted the office temporarily. Mr. Hatch will not leave for Washington until the latter part of November. His special mission is to seek closer political union between the United States and the republic of Hawaii.

May Tie Up the System.

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 4.—The switchmen of the Western New York & Pennsylvania railroad went out on a strike owing to the failure of the men to secure the restoration of a cut of ten per cent. made some time ago. The road at this place is practically blocked. If they cannot reach some satisfactory agreement with the officials of the road it is understood that the men will go out at Buffalo, Olean and Rochester and tie up the whole system of 900 miles.

Yellow Fever at Havana.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Reports to the marine hospital service show much yellow fever at Havana. From October 10 to 24 there were 160 cases and 43 deaths.

When Wrinkles Seam the Brow.

And the locks grow scant and silvery, infirmities of age come on apace. To retard and ameliorate these is one of the benign effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine to which the aged and infirm can resort as a safe and invigorant. It counteracts a tendency to rheumatism and neuralgia, improves digestion, rectifies biliousness and overcomes malaria. A wine-glass before retiring promotes slumber.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

"Not before the fifth shot," said the mugger, as though he had never dreamed of stunning one of his listeners—"not before the fifth shot did I sink, and I rose in time to hear a thief of a boatman telling all those white women that I was most certainly dead. One bullet had gone under a neck-plate of mine. I know not if it is there still, for the reason I cannot turn my head. Look and see, child. It will show my tale is true."

"I?" said the jackal. "Shall an eater of old shoes, a bone-cracker, presume to doubt the word of the Envy of the River? May my tail be bitten off by blind puppies if the shadow of such a thought have crossed my humble mind. The Protector of the Poor has condescended to inform me, his slave, that once in his life he has been wounded by a woman. This is sufficient, and I will tell the tale to all my children, asking for no proof."

"Over-much civility is sometimes no better than over-much discourtesy, for, as the saying is, one can choke a guest with curds. I do not desire that any children of thine should know that the mugger of Muger-Ghaut took his only wound from a woman. They will have much else to think of if they get their living as miserably as does their father."

"It is forgotten long ago! It was never said! There never was a white woman! There was no boat! Nothing whatever happened at all."

The jackal waved his brush to show how completely everything was wiped out of his memory, and sat down with an air.

"Indeed, very many things happened," said the mugger, beaten in his second attempt that night to get the better of his friend. (Neither bore malice, however. Eat and be eaten was fair law along the river, and the jackal came in for his share of plunder when the mugger had finished a meal.) "I left that boat and went upstream, and, when I had reached Arrah and the back waters behind it, there were no more dead English. The river was empty for awhile. Then came one or two dead, in red coats, not English, but of one kind—all—Hindoos and Purbeahs—then five and six abreast, and at last, from Arrah to the north beyond Agra, it was as though whole villages had walked into the water. They came out of little creeks one after another, as the logs come down in the rains. When the river rose they rose also in companies from the shoals they had rested upon; and the falling flood dragged them with it across the fields and through the jungle by the long hair. All night, too, going north, I heard the guns, and by day the shod feet of men crossing fords, and that noise which a heavy cart wheel makes on sand under water; and every ripple brought more dead. At last even I was afraid, for I said: 'If this happen to men how shall the mugger of Muger-Ghaut escape?' There were boats, too, that came up behind me without sails, burning continually as the cotton boats sometimes burn, but never sinking."

"Ah!" said the adjutant. "Boats like those come to Calcutta of the South. They are tall and black, they beat up the water behind them with a tail, and they—"

"Are thrice as big as my village. My boats were low and white; they beat up the water on either side of them, and were no larger than the boats of one who speaks truth should be. They made me very afraid, and I left water and went back to this river, hiding by day and walking by night, when I could not find little streams to help me. I came to my village again, but I could not hope to see any of my people there. Yet they were plowing and sowing and reaping, and going to and fro in their fields as quietly as their own cattle."

"Was there still good food in the river?" asked the jackal.

"More than I had any desire for. Even I—and I do not eat mud—even I was tired and, as I remember, a little frightened of this constant coming down of the silent ones. I heard my people say in my village that all the English were dead, but those that came face down with the current were not English, as my people saw. Then my people said that it was best to say nothing at all, but to pay the tax and plow the land. After a long time the river cleared, and those that came down it had been clearly drowned by the floods, as I could well see; and, though it was not so easy then to get food, I was heartily glad of it. A little killing here and there is no bad thing—but even the mugger is sometimes satisfied, as the saying is."

"Marvelous! Most truly marvelous!" said the jackal. "I am become fat through merely hearing about so much good eating. And afterward what, if it be permitted to ask, did the Protector of the Poor do?"

"I said to myself—and by the Right and Left of Gunga I locked my jaws on that vow—I said I would never go roving any more. So I lived by the ghaut very close to my own people, and I watched over them year after year; and they loved me so much that they threw marigold wreaths at my head whenever they saw it lift. Yes, and my fate has been very kind to me, and the river is good enough to respect my poor and infirm presence; only—"

"No one is all happy from his beak to his tail," said the adjutant, sympathetically. "What does the mugger of Muger-Ghaut need more?"

"That little white child which I did not get," said the mugger, with a deep sigh. "He was very small, but I have not forgotten. I am old now, but before I die it is my desire to try one new thing. It is true they are a heavy-footed, noisy and foolish people, and the sport would be small, but I remember the old days above Benares, and if the child lives he will remember still. It may be he goes up and down the bank of some river, telling how he once passed his hands between the teeth of the mugger of Muger-Ghaut, and lived to make a tale of it. My fate has been very kind, but that plagues me sometimes in my dreams—the thought of the little white child in the bows of that boat." He yawned and closed his jaws. "And now I will rest and think. Keep silent, my children, and respect the aged."

He turned stiffly and shuffled to the top of the sandbar, while the jackal drew back with the adjutant to the shelter of a tree stranded on the end nearest the railway-bridge.

"That was a pleasant and profitable life," he grinned, looking up inquiringly at the bird who towered above him. "And not once, mark you, did he think fit to tell me where a morsel might have been left along the banks. Yet I have told him a hundred times of good things wallowing down-stream. How true is the saying: 'All the world forgets the jackal and the barber when the news has been told!' Now he is going to sleep. Arrh!"

"How can a jackal hunt with a mugger?" said the adjutant, coolly. "Big thief and little thief; it is easy to say who gets the pickings."

The jackal turned, whining impatiently, and was going to curl himself up under the tree trunk, when he suddenly covered and looked up through the dragged branches at the bridge almost above his head.

"What now?" said the adjutant, opening his wings uneasily.

"Wait till we see. The wind blows from us to them, but they are not looking for us—those two men."

"Men, is it? My office protects me. All India knows I am holy." The adjutant, being a first-class scavenger, is allowed to go where he pleases, and so this one never flinched.

"I am not worth a blow from anything greater than an old shoe," said the jackal, and listened again. "Hark to that footfall!" he went on. "That was no country leather, but the shod foot of a whiteface. Listen again! Iron hits iron up there. It is a gun. Friend, those heavy-footed, foolish English are coming to speak with the mugger."

"Warn him, then. He was called Protector of the Poor by some one not unlike a starving jackal but a little time ago."

"Let my cousin protect his own hide. He has told me again and again there is nothing to fear from the whitefaces. They must be whitefaces. Not a villager of Muger-Ghaut would dare to come after him. See! I said it was a gun. Now, with good luck, we shall feed before daylight. He cannot hear well out of water, and—this time it is not a woman!"

A shiny barrel glittered for a minute in the moonlight on the girders. The mugger was lying on the sandbar as still as his own shadow, his forehead spread out a little, his head dropped between them, snorting like a—mugger.

A voice on the bridge whispered: "It's an odd shot—straight down almost—but as safe as houses. Better try behind the neck. Golly, what a brute! The villagers will be wild if he's shot, though. He's the deota (godling) of these parts."

"Don't care a rap," another voice answered. "He took about fifteen of my best coolies while the bridge was building, and it's about time he was put a stop to. I've been after him in a boat for weeks. Stand by with the Martini as soon as I've given him both barrels of this."

"Mind the kick, then. A double four-bore's no joke."

"That's for him to decide. Here goes!"

There was a roar like the sound of a small cannon (the biggest sort of elephant-ride is not very different from some artillery), and a double streak of flame, followed by the stinging crack of a Martini, whose long bullet makes nothing of a crocodile's plates. But the explosive bullets did the work. One of them struck just behind the mugger's neck, a hand's breadth to the left of the backbone, while the other burst a little lower down, at the beginning of the tail. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a mortally wounded crocodile can scramble off for deep water and go away; but the mugger of Muger-Ghaut was literally broken into three pieces. He hardly moved his head before the life went out of him, and he lay as flat as the jackal.

"Thunder and lightning! Lightning and thunder!" said that miserable little beast. "Has the thing that pulls the covered carts over the bridge tumbled at last?"

"It is no more than a gun," said the adjutant, though his very tail-feathers quivered. "Nothing more than a gun. He is certainly dead. Here come the white-faces."

The two Englishmen had hurried down from the bridge and across to the sandbar, where they stood admiring the length of the mugger. Then a native with an ax cut off the big head, and four men dragged it across the spit.

"The last time that I had my hand in a mugger's mouth," said one of the Englishmen, stooping down (he was the man who had built the bridge), "it was when I was about five years old—coming down the river by boat to Monghyr. I was a mutiny baby, y' know. Poor mother was in the boat, too, and she often told me how she fired dad's old pistol at the beast's head."

"Well, you've certainly had your revenge on the chief of the clan—even if my gun has made your nose bleed. Hi, you boatmen! Haul that head up the bank and we'll boil it for the skull. The skin's too knocked about to keep. Come along to bed now. This was worth sitting up all night for, wasn't it?"

Curiously enough, the jackal and the adjutant made the very same remark not three minutes after the men had left.

THE PARIS FUND.

How the Irish Money Was Brought from France to England.

An interesting account of the transmission of the released Paris funds from Paris to London has been furnished by the London correspondent of the Freeman. With the exception of a very small proportion, the funds, it should be explained, are in the form of American bonds of various kinds, payable to bearer.

When the order for their surrender to Mr. McCarthy was delivered by the French courts to the Paris bankers, Messrs. Monroe, the question arose as to the best means of transporting them across the channel. The junior partner of the firm of Messrs. Longmans & Co., who acted as Mr. McCarthy's solicitors, considered it undesirable to travel with so large a sum of negotiable bonds in his possession without insuring them. However, on inquiring of several leading insurance companies he found that none of them would undertake the risk. The result was that Mr. Longmans decided not to hazard the chances of the road with the securities.

Inquiry was instituted among persons accustomed to sending valuables of various kinds from the French to the English capital, in order to discover the plan usually adopted. To the surprise of those concerned, they learned that the only really safe method in the case of such valuable parcels was to send them by registered letter, and this method was ultimately successfully adopted.

Legal Papers.

Nearly all legal papers are now typewritten, though documents are encountered now and then which have been laboriously written out by the hand of one of the counsel. The men who still cling to the habit of writing their own legal papers are usually old lawyers, often of good practice, who cannot accommodate themselves to the new order of things. Young lawyers, no matter how small their practice, manage in one way or other to obtain the services of a stenographer. Some of the older men find it practically impossible to work with a stenographer or typewriter at hand.

FOUND GUILTY.

Jury in the Durrant Case Returns the Verdict.

Guilt of Murder in the First Degree—The ~~Adjutant~~ ~~General~~—An Affecting Scene Between Condemned Man and His Mother.

San Francisco, Nov. 2.—Theodore Durrant murdered Blanche Lamont. That was the verdict of the jury in the case Friday afternoon. The jury was out 28 minutes. The verdict was received with a shout of applause from the auditors who packed the courtroom. The closing scene of the great trial was full of dramatic interest, pathos and excitement. The charge of Judge Murphy occupied a little over an hour in the delivery.

As Foreman Dutton pronounced the words of guilty of murder in the first degree, the large audience, which had listened in perfect silence for the words which he was to utter, rose and uttered a yell which echoed far out in the corridors. Most of those in the audience were women. The cries which went up from them fell upon the ear of the convicted murderer's mother like a blow, and it seemed to bring her first realization of the force of the words of the jury's foreman. Her face was averted as she had nerved herself for the ordeal; but, though possessed of marvelous courage, a cry burst from her lips, followed by a hysterical outburst of sobs.

As he listened intently to the words which sealed his fate, Durrant partially rose from his seat. The look on his face was one of defiance, and it was apparent that he had it in mind to address the jury. The first cry from his mother changed his mind, if he had such intention. He sat down, turned to his mother and took her fondly in his arms. She rested her head on his shoulder and with his left arm about her slender form he held her in a tender embrace, patting her with his left hand and with his right stroking her hair. He seemed oblivious to the fact that a verdict which meant death to him had been returned, oblivious to everything except the weeping woman who had sat patiently by his side through the long trial, cheering him with words of hope. If his display was of nerve it was marvelous, and if of callousness to any but filial sensations, it was equally marvelous.

After their discharge, as the jurymen marched by Durrant and his mother, they all looked sympathetically upon the sad picture of the weeping woman upon the shoulder of her condemned son. Then Judge Murphy announced that next Friday he would pass sentence upon Durrant, and at the same time he would fix the time for beginning the trial of Durrant for the murder of Minnie Williams.

The verdict of the jury meets with general approbation. The town is wild over it, and it resembles the aftermath to an election. Durrant himself takes it coolly and says he has not yet lost hope. His attorneys will take an appeal to the supreme court on a bill of exceptions, the material for which accumulated during the trial.

The material for the Minnie Williams trial has all been gathered and the prosecution is prepared to go right ahead with it. It is certain that Judge Murphy will set an early day for the hearing. The general impression is that the result in that case will be the same as the one just concluded.

After the Ball.

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—A special from Monclova, Mexico, says that a party of 20 young men of prominent families went in wagons from Torreon to attend a dance at a neighboring ranch last Monday night. On their return trip a quarrel took place between members of the party and a desperate conflict occurred. Five of the party were killed and ten others seriously wounded.

A BRUTAL CRIME.

Au 11-Year-Old Girl Assaulted and Slain in Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 5.—Ida Gaskin's mutilated body was found in a small outbuilding in the rear of 1807½ Howard street, in the business district of Omaha, at two o'clock Monday morning. She had been assaulted and murdered.

Within an hour George Morgan, Ed Sanford and Henry Booker, all young men, were in custody, charged with the crime.

Ida Gaskin was 11 years old. Her mother, a widow, lived on the third floor of a tenement house at 1814 Howard street. Ida was missed from her home early in the evening. Her mother searched for her, but failed to find any trace of the missing girl. At 11 o'clock she reported to the police station that her daughter had disappeared. When the police search developed the murder, three hours later, a rigorous investigation led to the arrest of Booker on suspicion.

While all were outside the room save Mrs. Gaskin, her little son and a reporter, the little boy remarked: "I know who killed Ida." On being questioned he said that during the afternoon "George and Ed sent me upstairs to tell Ida they wanted her." The reporter learned that "George and Ed" were Morgan and Sanford, and that they occupied rooms on the floor below. Hurling a calling an officer, the pair were arrested. At the station most damning evidence was found on Morgan's person. Neither he nor Sanford were undressed when arrested.

On Morgan's underclothing fresh bloodstains were found and he refused to say a word. Both men are nervous.

The little girl was choked to death, her throat showing plainly where the cruel fingers had left their imprint. Booker is a driver of a coal wagon and a friend of the Gaskin family. Morgan is a collarmaker by trade, but has been out of employment for some time. Sanford works for the Crane Elevator company. It is the opinion of the police that the case is conclusive against Morgan.

Morgan, the alleged murderer of Ida Gaskin has been held for murder. He pleads that he was drunk at the time of the criminal assault and murder, but tries to throw suspicion on another. He is an ex-convict for burglary and was jailed a year for attempting a criminal assault upon a girl at Blair, Neb.

A DAY FOR THANKSGIVING.

President Issues the Customary Proclamation—Names November 28.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The customary Thanksgiving proclamation was issued by the president Monday as follows:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God which have been vouchsafed to the American people during the year which is just passed call for their sincere acknowledgment and devout gratitude.

To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed by all our people.

On that day let us forego our usual occupations and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the Giver of every good and perfect gift, for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and in the busy marts of trade, for the peace and order that have prevailed throughout the land, for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity and for the other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand.

And let us also on the day of our thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy and by deeds of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this fourth day of November in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five and in the one hundred and twentieth year of the independence of the United States.

Alleged Bigamist and Forger Finally Run to Earth in Mississippi.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Sheriff M. H. Patterson, of Woodruff county, Ark., passed through here with J. M. Leslie, alias Ryan, alias Lewis, whom he arrested at Okolona, Miss. His chase of the man extended over 2,200 miles, but the crimes warranted the persistent pursuit. Leslie is wanted for two bigamous marriages in Texas and Arkansas and known forgeries in Omaha, Neb., and other cities, with a line of the latter crimes the length of which is not known.

To Increase Its Stock.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Notice has been given to the stockholders of the Illinois Central railway that a special meeting of the shareholders will be held November 26 for the purpose of considering an increase in the capital stock of the company from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000. The $10,000,000 will be used in the reorganization of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Southwestern system.

WHERE has there ever been produced such a trio of murderers as Durrant, Heyward and Holmes.

THE man that wrote "Four more years of Grover," is dead. It was bound to knock him out.

EUGENE FIELD, poet, literature bibliophile, humorist and author of the unique "Sharps and Flats" that were so popular in the Chicago Daily News, is dead.

A Republican convention will be held at Rockford November 12th to place in nomination a candidate to succeed Judge Bailey. The nine DeKalb county delegates probably favor Judge Cartwright.

THIS new woman business promises a revolution of things in general. A Virginia young man becoming jealous of his sweet heart decides to shoot her. He met her on the street and shot her through the side of her neck. Before he had time to fire again she shot him three times with possible fatal effects. Great is the new woman.

The presentation by THE ISSUE of the name of Abram Ellwood for Congress in case A. J. Hopkins is elected governor, is meeting with much approval throughout the county. That Kane county has had the office for years past should in all decency prevent their presenting a candidate. DeKalb county is the banner Republican county of the district and is fully entitled to the honor and in Abram Ellwood this district would have a splendid successor to a brilliant Congressman.

Nothing in This World

Is so cheap as a newspaper, whether it be measured by the cost of its production or by its value to the consumer. We are talking about an American, metropolitan, daily paper of the first class like THE CHICAGO RECORD. It's so cheap and so good you can't afford in this day of progress to be without it. There are other papers possibly as good, but none better, and none just like it. It prints all the real news of the world—the news you care for—every day, and prints it in the shortest possible space. You can read THE CHICAGO RECORD and do a day's work too. It is an independent paper and gives all political news free from the taint of party bias. In a word—it's a complete, condensed, clean, honest family newspaper, and it has the largest morning circulation in Chicago or the west—160,000 to 175,000 a day.

Prof. T. J. Hatfield of the Northwestern University says: "THE CHICAGO RECORD comes as near being the ideal daily journal as we are for some time likely to find on these mortal shores."

Birth Day Party.
Dr. H. C. Billig was not a little surprised when he came home from the opera house Monday evening and found his house in the possession of a host of his friends, who had responded to cordial invitations from Mrs. Billig. The fore part of the evening was spent at the card tables, dancing following, for which Messrs Yalden and Shattuck furnished music. Refreshments were served. Every one who partook of the festivities report a fine time. Those present were:

Genoa School Report.
The second month closed on the 1st of November with the same attendance as that of the first month, save a few who entered school during October. There have been but a few cases of absence and tardiness during the month. Taking the school as a whole the work has been well done, and in some cases very well done. Yet I find some pupils whose grades run low, and unless they apply themselves more of evenings and mornings to their work in school, I think some will not pass in their studies. It would be well if parents keep their children in of evenings and have them prepare their lessons for the work in school. If a pupil does the work outlined for him, he will find but little time for anything else. Quite a number of our pupils already devote a portion of their time to their books of evenings, and I think could profit by doing likewise.

The Board made a few changes in text books during the past month that doubtless are beneficial. New books were exchanged for old ones of the same grade free of charge, viz, The New Normal Reader was exchanged for Barnes' and Rand and McNally's Geographies for Harper's series. Also we have a classification record in all the upper rooms and the pupils are graded each day. At the close of the term a report will be made out showing the standing of each pupil during the term. Report cards will be made out during the week for October. This will give parents an opportunity to see what their children are doing in school.

I understand the pupils of the principal's room have organized a literary society, which will doubtless prove a valuable acquisition if properly conducted. A good literary society is a great factor for the training of young ladies and gentlemen. Besides the literary society we have oratorical exercises once a month, bringing all the rooms together for this purpose. We have had one meeting already.

Our class in Civil Government has made a slight departure each Monday from the ordinary recitation in devoting that time to current literature. This is quite an interesting and instructive feature since it brings into discussion topics of a general nature.

In order and discipline we think the school has gradually improved from the first, and by the faithful cooperation of pupil and parent we hope to maintain a first class school in every particular. I should be pleased to have visitors at any time. It will not interfere with our work in the least. Respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH GRAY,
Principal.

The number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy is as follows: High School 22, Grammar Department 10, Intermediate 17, Second Intermediate 19, Primary 30.

You will find local news on every page this week.

The Olmstead Suit.
In the Circuit court last Saturday the suit of Mrs. Olmstead against the Farmer's Mutual Insurance Co., of Kingston, was awarded to the former and a judgment of $2,200 and interest entered against the defendants. The suit grew out of the burning of the Olmstead barn and the death therein of Mr. Olmstead. The barn was insured in the Kingston company and an assessment was levied on the members and the money raised. It was then learned that there was a mortgage on the property insured and the company declined to pay.

Republican Caucus.
There will be a caucus of the Republicans of Genoa at K. Jackman's office on Saturday Nov. 9th at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of appointing delegates to attend the county convention at Sycamore Tuesday November 12th. GEO. E. SISLEY, Chairman.

We Felt It.
Genoa didn't miss it, not by a long odds. She was right in it an experienced a real "quake" on last Thursday morning, and that too at an early hour for a newspaper man to wake up. A distinct shock was felt by nearly everybody in town (at least they all say they did) and for once some of our people arose early. One of our medical lights was awakened by finding himself out on the floor. He is positive his home was the center of the "quake."
What caused the eruption is not known, but a number are of the opinion that the talk of giving Cleveland a third term had considerable to do with it, but as this is not vouched for, we give it for what it is worth.

At last the long wished for rain is coming our way. It has been falling since Tuesday night. Let it continue for a week, nobody will protest it.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by F. T. Robinson, Genoa and H. R. Fuller, Kingston.

ENCOURAGING WORDS.

Spoken by Rev. Dr. Talmage to the Humble Toilers.

Though Faithful Service May Go Unappreciated in This Life, There is Sure Reward for All in the World to Come.

The following was Rev. Dr. Talmage's second discourse to his new congregation in Washington. The subject chosen was "The Disabled," and the text:

As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff.—I Samuel, xxx., 24.

If you have never seen an army change quarters, you have no idea of the amount of baggage—twenty loads, fifty loads, a hundred loads of baggage. David and his army were about to start on a double-quick march for the recovery of their captured families from the Amalekites. So they left by the Brook Besor their blankets, their knapsacks, their baggage, and their carriages. Who shall be detailed to watch this stuff? There are sick soldiers, and wounded soldiers, and aged soldiers who are not able to go on swift military expedition, but who are able to do some work, and so they are detailed to watch the baggage. There is many a soldier who is not strong enough to march thirty miles in a day and then plunge into a ten hours' fight, who is able with drawn sword lifted against his shoulder to pace up and down as a sentinel to keep off an enemy who might put the torch to the baggage. There are two hundred of those crippled and aged and wounded soldiers detailed to watch the baggage. Some of them, I suppose, had bandages across the brow, and some of them had their arm in a sling, and some of them walked on crutches. They were not cowards shirking duty. They had fought in many a fierce battle for their country and their God. They are now part of the time in hospital, and part of the time on garrison duty. They almost cry because they can not go with the other troops to the front. While these sentinels watch the baggage, the Lord watches the sentinels.

There is quite a different scene being enacted in the distance. The Amalekites, having ravaged and ransacked and robbed whole countries, are celebrating their success in a roaring carousal. Some of them are dancing on the lawn with wonderful gyrations of heel and toe, and some of them are examining the spoils of victory—the finger rings and earrings, the necklaces, the wristlets, the head-bands, diamond studded, and the coffers with coronets, and carnelians, and pearls, and sapphires, and emeralds, and all the wealth of plate, and jewels, and decanters, and the silver and the gold banked up on the earth in princely profusion, and the embroideries, and the robes, and the turbans, and the cloaks of an imperial wardrobe. The banquet has gone on until the banqueters are maudlin and weak and stupid and indecent and loathsomely drunk. What a time it is now for David and his men to swoop on them. So the English lost the battle of Bannockburn, because the night before they were in wassail and bibulous celebration, while the Scotch were in prayer. So the Syrians were overthrown in their carousal by the Israelites. So Chedorloamer and his army were overthrown by Abraham and his men. So, in our civil war, more than once the battle was lost because one of the generals was drunk. Now is the time for David and his men to swoop upon these carousing Amalekites. Some of the Amalekites are hacked to pieces on the spot, some of them are just able to go staggering and hiccupping off the field, some of them crawl on camels and speed off in the distance. David and his men gather together the wardrobes, the jewels, and put them upon the back of camels, and into wagons, and they gather together the sheep and cattle that had been stolen and start back toward the garrison. Yonder they come, yonder they come. The limping men of the garrison come out to greet them with wild huzza. The Bible says David saluted them. That is, he asked them how they all were. "How is your broken arm?" "How is your fractured jaw?" "Has the stiffened limb been unlimbered?" "Have you had another chill?" "Are you getting better?" He saluted them.

But now came a very difficult thing, the distribution of the spoils of victory. Drive up those laden camels now. Who shall have the spoils? Well, some selfish soul suggests that these treasures ought all to belong to those who had been out in active service. "We did all the fighting while these men stayed at home in the garrison, and we ought to have all the treasures." But David looked into the worn faces of these veterans who had stayed in the garrison, and he looked around and saw how cleanly everything had been kept, and he saw that the baggage was all safe, and he knew that these wounded and crippled men would gladly enough have been at the front if they had been able, and the little General looks up from under his helmet and says: "No, no; let us have fair play;" and he rushes up to one of these men and he says: "Hold your hands together," and the hands are held together, and he fills them with silver.

And he rushes up to another man who was sitting away back and had no idea of getting any of the spoils, and throws a Babylonish garment over him and fills his hand with gold. And he rushes up to another man who had lost all his property in serving God and his country years before, and he drives up some of the cattle and some of the sheep that they had brought back from the Amalekites, and he gives two or three of the cattle and three or four of the sheep to this poor man, so he shall always be fed and clothed. He sees a man so emaciated and worn out and sick he needs stimulants, and he gives him a little of the wine that he brought from the Amalekites. Yonder is a man who has no appetite for the rough rations of the army, and he gives him a rare morsel from the Amalekites banquet, and the two hundred crippled and maimed and aged soldiers who tarried on garrison duty get just as much of the spoils of battle as any of the two hundred men that went to the front. "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff."

The impression abroad that the Christian rewards are for those who do conspicuous service in distinguished places—great patriots, great preachers, great philanthropists. But my text sets forth the idea that there is just as much regard for a man that stays at home and minds his own business, and who, crippled and unable to go forth and lead in great movements and in the high places of the earth, does his whole duty just where he is. Garrison duty is as important and as remunerative as service at the front. "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff."

The earl of Kintore said to me in an English railway carriage: "Mr. Talmage, when you get back to America I want you to preach a sermon on the discharge of ordinary duty in ordinary places, and then send me a copy of it." Afterward an English clergyman coming to this land brought from the earl of Kintore the same message! Alas! that before I got ready to do what he asked me to do, the good earl of Kintore had departed this life. But that man, surrounded by all palatial surroundings, and in a distinguished sphere, felt sympathetic with those who had ordinary duties to perform in ordinary places and in ordinary ways. A great many people are discouraged when they hear the story of Moses, and of Joshua, and of David, and of Luther, and of John Knox, and of Deborah, and of Florence Nightingale. They say: "Oh, that was all good and right for them, but I shall never be called to receive the law on Mount Sinai. I shall never be called to command the sun and the moon to stand still, I shall never be called to slay a giant, I shall never preach on Mars' hill, I shall never defy the diet of Worms, I shall never be called to make a queen tremble for her crimes, I shall never preside over a hospital." There are women who say: "If I had as brilliant a sphere as those people had I should be as brave and as grand; but my business is to get children off to school, and hunt up things when they are lost, and to see that dinner is ready, and to keep account of the household expenses, and to hinder the children from being strangled by the whooping cough, and to go through all the annoyances and vexations of housekeeping. Oh, my sphere is so infinitesimal, and so insignificant, I am clear discouraged."

Woman, God places you on garrison duty, and your reward will be just as great as that of Florence Nightingale, who, moving so often night by night with a light in her hand through the hospitals, was called by the wounded the "lady of the lamp." Your reward will be just as great as that of Mrs. Hertzog, who built and endowed theological seminary buildings. Your reward will be just as great as that of Hannah More, who by her excellent books won for her admirers Garrick and Edmund Burke and Joshua Reynolds. Rewards are not to be given according to the amount of noise you make in the world, nor even according to the amount of good you do, but according to whether you work to your full capacity, according to whether or not you do your full duty in the sphere where God has placed you.

Once for thirty-six hours we expected every moment to go to the bottom of the ocean. The waves struck through the skylights, and they rushed down into the hold of the ship and hissed against the boilers. It was an awful time; but by the blessing of God and the faithfulness of the men in charge, we came out of the cyclone and we arrived at home. Each one before leaving the ship thanked Capt. Andrews. I do not think there was a man or woman that went off that ship without thanking Capt. Andrews, and when, years after, I heard of his death, I was compelled to write a letter of condolence to his family in Liverpool. Everybody recognized the goodness, the courage, the kindness of Capt. Andrews; but it occurs to me now that we never thanked the engineer. He stood away down in the darkness, amid the hissing furnaces, doing his whole duty. Nobody thanked the engineer, but God recognized his heroism and his continuance and his fidelity, and there will be just as high reward for the engineer who worked out of sight as the captain who stood on the bridge of the ship in the midst of the howling tempest. "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff."

Clear back in the country there is a boy who wants to go to college and get an education. They call him a bookworm. Wherever they find him—in the barn or in the house—he is reading a book. "What a pity it is," they say, "that Ed can not get an education." His father, work as hard as he will, can no more than support the family by the product of the farm. One night Ed has retired to his room and there is a family conference about him. The sisters say: "Father, I wish you would send Ed to college; if you will, we will work harder than we ever did, and we will make our old dresses do." The mother says: "Yes, I will get along without any hired help." The father says: "Well, I think by husking corn nights I can get along without any assistance." Sugar is banished from the table, butter is banished from the plate. That family is put down on rigid, yea, suffering economy, that the boy may go to college. Time passes on. Commencement day has come. Think not that I mention an imaginary case. God knows it happened. Commencement day has come, and the professors walk in on the stage in their long gowns. The interest of the occasion in passing on, and after awhile in comes to a climax of interest as the valedictorian is to be introduced. Ed has studied so hard and worked so well that he has had the honor conferred upon him. There are rounds of applause, sometimes breaking into vociferation. It is a great day for Ed. But away back in the galleries are his sisters in their plain hats and their faded shawls and their old-fashioned father and mother—clear me, she has not had a new coat for six years—and they get up and look over on the platform, and they laugh and they cry, and they sit down, and they look pale, and they are very much flushed. Ed gets the garlands, and the old-fashioned group in the gallery have their full share of the triumph. They have made that scene possible, and in the day when God shall more fully reward self-sacrifices made for others, He will give grand and glorious recognition. "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff."

Fret not, ye aged ones. Just tarry by the stuff and wait for your share of the spoils. Yonder they are coming. I hear the bleating of the fat lambs and I see the jewels glint in the sun. It makes me laugh to think how you will be surprised when they throw a chain of gold over your neck, and tell you to go in and dine with the King. I see you backing out because you feel unworthy. The shining ones come up on the one side, and the shining ones come up on the other side, and they push you on, and they push you up, and they say: "Here is an old soldier of Jesus Christ," and the shining ones will rush out toward you and say: "Yes, that man saved my soul," or they will rush out and say: "Oh, yes, she was with me in the last sickness." And then the cry will go round the circle: "Come in, come in, come in, come; we saw you away down there, old and sick and decrepit and discouraged because you could not go to the front, but 'as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff.'"

Cheer up, men and women of unappreciated services. You will get your reward, if not here, hereafter. When Charles Wesley comes up to judgment, and the thousands of souls which were wafted into glory through his songs shall be enumerated, we will take his throne. Then John Wesley will come up to judgment, and after his name has been mentioned in connection with the salvation of the millions of souls brought to God through the Methodism which he founded, he will take his throne. But between the two thrones of Charles Wesley and John Wesley, there will be a throne higher than either, on which shall sit Susanna Wesley, who with maternal consecration in Epworth rectory, Lincolnshire, started those two souls on their triumphant mission of sermon and song through all following ages. Oh, what a day that will be for many who rocked Christian cradles with weary foot, and who patched worn-out garments and darned socks, and out of a small income made the children comfortable for the winter. What a day that will be for those to whom the world gave the cold shoulder, and called them nobodies, and begrudged them the least recognition, and who, weary and worn and sick, fainted by the Brook Besor. Oh, that will be a mighty day when the son of David shall distribute among them the garlands, the crowns, the scepters, the chariots, the thrones. And then it shall be found out that all who on earth served God in inconspicuous spheres, receive just as much reward as those who filled the earth with uproar of achievement. Then they shall understand the height, the depth, the length, the breadth, the pillared and domed magnificence of my text: "As his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff."

Bamboo pens have been used in India for over one thousand years. They are made like the ordinary quill pen, and for a few hours' writing are said to be very serviceable.

HOLMES TO HANG.

The Arch-Friend Found Guilty of the Murder of Pitzel.

Jury Requires But a Moment to Decide Upon His Fate—Mrs. Pitzel on the Witness Stand—Defense Presents No Evidence.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Henry H. Holmes was convicted of murder in the first degree at 3:51 o'clock Saturday night for killing Benjamin F. Pitzel. He coughed slightly when he heard the words. That was the only sign.

The jury retired to deliberate at 5:40 o'clock. According to one of their number, they had reached their verdict before the doors of their room closed upon them. For hunger's sake they ate their supper first. Then they took a ballot, and without hesitation every man of the 12 answered: "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

At 8:40 o'clock there was a bustle of moving people in the packed courtroom and it became known that the jury was coming in. A moment later Judge Arnold took his seat. District Attorney Graham and his assistants entered and the jury filed solemnly in and took their seats in the box. Then, amid an oppressive silence, Holmes was brought in and placed in the dock. For a moment there was not a sound. The silence was literally painful and every heart in that crowded room throbbled faster. The man who was about to hear his doom pronounced stood erect in the dock, the same death like pallor on his face. He stared at the jury blankly, his hands clasped behind his back. Once or twice he moistened his lips with his tongue. There was no other sign of agitation. Then, from a deep-voiced court clerk came the request to the jury for their verdict. The condemning words came promptly from the foreman: "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

Then the jury was polled, and as each name was called Holmes wrote it on the margin of a newspaper in his hand, and the fingers holding the pencil never shook. The verdict was formally recorded by the court, the motion for a new trial was made, and Holmes was taken to his cellroom and a few moments later to prison. Then the jury was thanked for its attention and labors and sent home, the court adjourned and the most extraordinary case in the annals of American courts was ended.

Immediately after the announcement of the verdict the usual application for leave to file a motion for a new trial was made. District Attorney Graham did not oppose the motion, and Judge Arnold fixed the 18th of this month for a hearing. The principal reason urged will be lack of time for the preparation of the defense. Should a new trial be refused, an appeal will be taken to the supreme court, and argument heard at its next sitting in this city, January, 1896.

Mr. Graham made the argument for the prosecution and Mr. Rotan that for the defense.

Judge Arnold, in his charge to the jury, began with the usual definition of the various degrees of murder and manslaughter, and read several passages from the penal code of Pennsylvania. He instructed the jury to direct their thoughts to the question whether the prisoner had committed murder, and, if so, of what degree. If the commonwealth had proved that it was a wilful, deliberate and premeditated murder, then he was guilty of murder in the first degree. If persuaded that it was suicide and not murder, or if there was a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors they must acquit.

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Pitzel was placed upon the witness stand Tuesday afternoon, and her story furnished the first really sensational feature in the Holmes murder trial.

Mrs. Pitzel testified that she employed Howe to collect the insurance money by the advice of Holmes. At the time Holmes told her that Pitzel was alive and was going around by Puget Sound. Holmes told her that her husband received her last letter, and she replied: "Oh! how could he do so and get me into trouble?" Holmes told her that it was through his wife at Willamette, Ill., that the insurance company found him.

Alice started for Philadelphia with Howe, Holmes not being along. It was at Holmes' suggestion that the child was sent to Philadelphia, and both men promised to take good care of her.

The next time she saw Holmes was on September 27, at her home in St. Louis. The body had been identified, and Holmes told her he had left Alice in Cincinnati, and as she would not want to leave the child alone, he offered to take Nellie and Howard, the other two children, to her in Indianapolis. She took the children to the railroad station and there they met Howe, who gave her five dollars of the insurance money. Holmes and the children left, and she did not see Holmes again until October 2, when the prisoner came to her house in St. Louis.

Holmes would not allow her to mail any letters herself, but took them from her and promised to post them for her. A bunch of these letters to the children that Holmes had never mailed were shown to Mrs. Pitzel and she readily identified them. Holmes not only did not mail the letters, but opened and read them. Mrs. Pitzel seemed about to break down when asked to identify the handwriting of her dead girls in letters to herself, but she bore up bravely and amidst a deathlike silence in the courtroom named the writer of each letter as it was shown to her.

Mr. Graham asked: "When did you last see or hear from your husband?" In a voice choking with emotion Mrs. Pitzel replied:

"I have never seen my husband since the 29th of July, or heard from him in his own handwriting since August 29."

Then Mr. Graham in a solemn voice asked: "Have you ever seen any of your three children since you gave them to this man?"

This question was too much and amidst her sobs Mrs. Pitzel replied: "I have never seen my little girls except lying side by side in the morgue at Toronto, and I have never seen Howard, but I saw some of his little things in the corner's office at Indianapolis." There was more than one moistened eye in the court while the sobbing woman was speaking, and the defense, realizing the probable effect the sight of a bereaved and suffering mother would have upon the sensibilities of the jury, interposed an objection. Mr. Graham was so vehement in his indignant reply to the defense's objection that he was rebuked by the court who, however, sustained his line of questioning.

The defense then began its cross-examination, which was conducted by Mr. Rotan. The cross-examination of Mrs. Pitzel covered much the same ground as her direct testimony and developed nothing favorable to the defense, but, if anything, strengthened the story of Holmes' cold-blooded knavery. Mrs. Pitzel was still on the stand when court took a recess.

At seven p. m. Mrs. Pitzel resumed the stand, and her cross-examination was proceeded with. It was indirectly shown by the testimony of the witness that Holmes had several times paid the rent for the Pitzel family, and grocery and provision bills. The witness further said that her husband had told her that Holmes owed him this money, and if he did not provide for his (Pitzel's) family while he was in prison he would make it hot for Holmes. By indirect admissions, Mrs. Pitzel showed that Pitzel was practically dependent upon Holmes for support. Pitzel told her, previous to its carrying out, of the scheme to defraud the insurance company, but he did not tell when or where it would be perpetrated.

She identified the portrait of her husband and the valise he had when he left home. After being on the stand for an hour Wednesday evening, Mrs.

PITZEL.

Pitzel's examination was ended, and she feebly staggered to her seat, with the assistance of two court officers, and in a few minutes left the courtroom.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—Holmes on Friday threw himself upon the mercy of the jury. When the commonwealth closed its case in the afternoon, his attorneys announced that they considered the prosecution had not made out its charge of murder and they would rest their case upon the evidence offered by the commonwealth and submit no testimony in defense of the prisoner. This decision was made by Holmes upon the advice of a well-known lawyer who was at one time retained by the prisoner. The move seemed like a bold one, but was unquestionably done more in desperation in hope of influencing the jury and creating the impression in their minds that, being conscious of his innocence and not having had time to prepare a proper defense, Holmes trusted himself to their sense of justice. In reality Holmes has no defense. The commonwealth has presented no direct proof that Holmes murdered Pitzel. Their chain of circumstantial evidence even was not as strong as expected, and but for the admissions at various times of Holmes himself, the district attorney would have had a most difficult task in proving the charge.

EUGENE FIELD DEAD.

The End Comes Suddenly to the Famous Poet.

He Expires Peacefully While Asleep at His Home in a Chicago Suburb—A Brief Sketch of His Life.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Eugene Field, poet and humorist, died about 5 o'clock Monday morning of heart disease at his residence in Buena Park. Although Mr. Field has been ill for the past three days his sudden death was totally unexpected. Mr. Field's death was first discovered by his son, who occupied the room with him. The young man heard his father groan, and putting out his hand discovered that he was dead. Mr. Field retired Sunday night at the usual hour and slept soundly until daybreak. He had not complained and the brief indisposition preceding his demise had aroused so little alarm that until Sunday he had intended to leave for Kansas City, where he was to have given a reading Monday night. The announcement created the greatest surprise and sorrow, as Mr. Field was considered to be in the prime of his life. A widow and five children survive him.

Among the early callers at the house Monday morning were Mr. Melville E. Stone, Mr. Victor F. Lawson and Mr. H. H. Kohlsaat. These gentlemen were given general charge of the funeral arrangements, but the obsequies will be under the direction of the Fellowship club. The funeral will take place Wednesday, probably at two o'clock, and the interment will be at Graceland.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The announcement of the sudden death of Eugene Field proved a great shock to his numerous friends here. Mr. Field has often visited Washington and was known personally by a large number of the public men and newspaper writers of the national capital, by whom he was not only admired for his skill as a writer of prose and verse, but highly esteemed for his genial social qualities.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Eugene Field was booked for a reading in Nashville during the present season, and much pleasure was anticipated from hearing the popular poet. The admirers of his writings in this section were numerous, and the southern people were anxious to know him personally. The news of his sudden death causes genuine regret in Nashville.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 5.—Eugene Field had been booked for a reading at the Auditorium in this city Monday evening. The demand for seats to hear the popular poet has been remarkable, and a crowded house was assured. Mr. Field had hosts of friends in this city, especially among the newspaper fraternity, in which he was himself a member several years ago, having worked on the Star. Elaborate plans for a reception had been made by his newspaper friends and admirers and a royal time was anticipated for him.

(Eugene Field was the son of Roswell Martin and Frances (Reed) Field and was born in St. Louis September 2, 1850. After finishing his education in the State university of Missouri in 1871 he adopted the profession of newspaper writer, beginning with the St. Louis Journal in 1872. His next connection was with the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette in 1875, after which he returned to St. Louis to take an editorial position on the Times-Journal. In 1880 he was on the staff of the Kansas City Times, but left that paper in 1881 to become managing editor of the Denver Tribune. He came to Chicago August 13, 1883, to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News (now the Record) and his connection with that paper continued without interruption to the day of his death. In addition to his newspaper work Mr. Field found time to perform extra labor in the literary field, and established a reputation as a graceful and clever writer of stories and verse. He was especially happy in his poems and stories of juvenile life.

Among the most popular bits of verse of which Mr. Field was the author are: "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," "Little Boy Blue," "Seen Things," and "Christmas Treasures." Mr. Field's prose writings proved him to be gifted with delicate sentiment and rare humor, which often lies very close to tears. He drew many masterly sketches of western and New England character.

Mr. Field married October 16, 1873, Miss Julia Comstock, of St. Joseph, Mo., and had seven children. In June, 1892, Knox college conferred upon Mr. Field the honorary degree of A. M.)

HINSHAW DENIED A NEW TRIAL.

The Famous Indiana Wife-Murderer Is Sent to Prison.

Danville, Ind., Nov. 5.—Judge Hadley overruled the motion for a new trial in the Hinshaw murder case, and sentenced the prisoner to the penitentiary. His attorneys will appeal the case to the supreme court. Hinshaw is looking terribly broken in health, and it is feared he will not live long. He will be taken to the prison south to-day.

DECATUR'S BIG FIRE.

Fine Opera House and Other Buildings Burned—Loss of $500,000.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 5.—The Grand opera house, built in 1889, and furnished elegantly throughout by Orlando Powers at a cost of $100,000, was destroyed by fire Monday night, the flames breaking out in the basement from some unknown cause. The building stood in State street, back of a block of fine buildings and south of J. Milliken's temporary bank, which were in danger. The total loss on the opera house is $50,000; insurance, $20,000. Manager Haines says the hall will be rebuilt.

The fire worked its way into the block north of the opera house and broke out afresh after the roof of the opera house fell in. All the occupants of the buildings moved out as rapidly as they could. Great volumes of sparks, flames and smoke rose, and the wind, blowing from the south and west, carried them to the roofs of the buildings north of East Main street, igniting the roofs in places and causing general alarm, but the fires were extinguished and damage averted. All the buildings in the block bounded by Main, Wood, Water and State streets are owned by Orlando Powers.

Those north of the opera house and Albert Barnes' abstract office, fronting on Water street, seemed doomed. The fire had gained such headway that nothing less than a flood of water would save the buildings. The Fisk furniture stock, the Columbia Manufacturing company property and a large part of the Linn & Scruggs dry goods stock were threatened, together with lodge property belonging to Coeur de Liou lodge, Knights of Pythias; the modern woodmen, No. 144, and Princes of the Orient. The total loss is placed at $500,000.

The insurance is not known now. Springfield sent an engine on a Wabash special train, arriving at 11 o'clock. The Decatur paid fire department and limited apparatus were insufficient for such a fire. Great cheers went up when the firemen sent by special train from Springfield hastened through the streets to the scene of the fire. All fell to work with a will, and they did so well it seemed for a time the flames would be suppressed, but the fire had too much of a start.

At midnight the St. James block, one block away, caught fire. The St. James adjoins the St. Nicholas, the finest hotel in the city, and it is feared this will burn, as the fire department is badly handicapped. At 2:30 a. m. the entire block was a mass of flames, with fire issuing from all the windows. The roof had fallen in. Following is a list of property burned:

Linn & Scruggs' stock, lately invoiced at $192,000, was nearly all safely carried out. Insurance, $105,000.
Harry Fisk, furniture, loss, $6,000. Insurance, $4,000.
Columbia company, loss, $40,000. Partly insured.

Knights of Pythias, Modern Woodmen and Rathbone Sisters, losses, $2,000. Insured.

Orlando Powers, loss on opera house, $75,000. Insurance, $20,000.
Orlando Powers, loss on other buildings, $10,000. Insurance, $8,000.

H. H. Whitley, loss, $30,000; insurance, $4,250.
C. W. Utely, tailor, $1,500; insurance, $3,000.

People's Union Loan association, Dr. T. S. Hoskins, dentist; Millikens' bank, all small losses and insured.

HE MUST DIE.

Peculiar Case of a Man Sentenced to Death in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 5.—In the supreme court the decision in the case of Will Purvis vs. the state was affirmed, which means that Purvis is to suffer the death penalty. It will be remembered that Purvis was convicted in Marion county of being a white cap, and of murdering a companion who "squealed" on the gang. He was sentenced to hang, but through the carelessness of the sheriff he fell through the trap of the scaffold to the ground unharmed, the rope having slipped off his neck. The sheriff refused to rehang the man and put him back in jail, where he has been two years. Strong efforts for a pardon will now be made.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

One Man Killed and Several Hurt in a Pennsylvania Mine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 5.—A serious explosion of gas occurred Monday morning in the Hillman vein mine which caused the death of one man and the fatal injuring of another. Samuel Stoock, a miner, and his laborer, John Bennis, were working in their chamber when they encountered a pocket of gas and in an instant they were enveloped in a sheet of flame. Stoock was horribly burned and was taken to the hospital, where he died Monday afternoon. Bennis was also removed to the hospital, and is reported to be in a serious condition.

SHUTS DOWN ALL TANNERIES.

Leather Trust Throws 15,000 of Its Employees Out of Work.

New York, Nov. 5.—The World says: "The United States Leather company, known as the leather trust, to-day shut down the 100 tanneries under its control. Not another hide will be taken from its vats for 60 days. During the 60 days the 100 tanneries are closed more than 15,000 laborers, tanners, clerks and employes generally will be without work. Several of the rivals of the combination have recently been cutting prices extensively, which is stated to be the cause of the present curtailing of the latter's operations."

Maid, Mother and Infant.
A blushing rose smiled 'neath a sunny bower,
And brighter grew as day succeeded day,
Until it bloomed, a sweet and fragrant flower,
And zephyrs came to steal its breath away,
And bring it nectar lest it should decay.

One morn was found within its fragrant cup,
A crystal dewdrop, just distilled from Heaven;
A sunbeam passing took the dewdrop up;
The rose then drooped, to grief its leaves were given,
And ere 'twas noon the stalk was tempest-riven.

HARDENING OF THE LIVER.

How a Pittsfield, Ill., Gentleman Overcame It.

Condition Often Induces Paralysis and Should Have the Best of Treatment.

From the Democrat, Pittsfield, Ill.

Mr. Valentine Smith, a farmer living in this county, whose post office address is Pittsfield, Ill., for the good of humanity in general, and especially for the benefit of any who may be afflicted as he was, wishes to make the following statement with reference to the great benefit he has received from using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People:

His statement is as follows: "About a year ago I was living in the Mississippi bottom near the river, and I had become very much broken in health, suffering greatly from a distension or hardening of the lower part of the abdomen or bowels, besides being troubled with my kidneys and other complications which rendered my case, as I had supposed, almost hopeless. I had been in this condition, although, of course, not as bad as I was a year ago, for something over six years, and had about given up all hope of ever being a well man again, when, by the many testimonials and advertisements I had read with reference to the wonderful cures perfected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I was induced to give them a trial. After taking two boxes I began to feel greatly relieved, and by the time I had used up five or six boxes I was completely cured and have been, comparatively speaking, a well man ever since. During all the time that I was suffering with this dreadful disease, which I am unable to name, I passed many sleepless nights and was in great distress almost continually and was able to do but little work. Now I sleep and eat well, and although I am sixty-one years of age, I am able to do a good day's work on the farm, having put in and tended eight acres of corn this season, besides doing a large amount of other work on the farm. In short, I think your medicine a great blessing to humanity, and can cheerfully recommend it to all suffering as I was. I had been in this condition six or seven years and had given everything I could hear of, doctors included, a fair trial, but could get no relief."
VALENTINE SMITH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 4th day of June A. D., 1895.

THE PISO COMPANY,
Warren, Pa.

Gentlemen:
Six years ago last Spring I took a severe cold, which settled on my lungs. I coughed and spit blood until my husband was alarmed about me. I told him to go to the drug store and get me a bottle of Piso's Cure for Consumption. He did so, and by the time I had taken its contents according to directions I was very much better. He then bought two more bottles, and they cured me.

In fact, we could hardly keep house without Piso's Cure for Consumption. My husband is subject to a cough every Winter, and he says nothing (and he has tried every cough medicine on the market) helps him as does Piso's Cure.
You may publish the above if you so desire.

Very truly yours,

There's room for a little more of it. Too many women are wasting time and strength over a wash-board; rubbing their clothes to pieces; wasting their money. You'd be astonished if you could figure up the actual money saving in a year by the use of Pearlina. Millions of women are using it now, but just suppose that all women were equally careful and thrifty, and that every one used Pearlina! Bubbles or Medals.
"Best sarsaparilla." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as for there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is—? . . . There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could, if you were chemists. But then, do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it,—and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

A sociable will be held in the parlors of the M. E. Church on Friday evening, Nov. 8th, by the Young Ladies Mite Society for the benefit of the Kingston public school library. Supper will be served from five o'clock until nine. A large attendance is desired as it is a cause in which all are interested.

An exhibition of corn-husking by machinery was given in town last week when Stearnson and Hamilton husked for A. N. Wyllys. It is quite a novelty to witness the work, to say the least.

The series of illustrated lecture and stereopticon entertainments that have been given in the M. E. Church for several evenings, were highly entertaining, and they were worthy of larger audiences than greeted them. They gave an exhibition in the Davis church in North Kingston on Tuesday evening. The same company was here ten years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Brainerd have returned from a visit of over three months with numerous relatives in various parts of New York state. They report a very pleasant time. Mr. Brainerd is thinking of buying a house here.

Yes, we appreciated the fact on last Friday morning that Thursday evening was Hallowe'en. After glancing at the long string of buggies, agricultural implements, wagons, etc. that occupied Main St. and looked very much ala Coxey's army, the fact became firmly fixed in our mind. It's queer that none of the concrete walks were overturned. "Dan" Ball says that the naughty boys who did the work are James Dunbar and A. I. Fulmer.

The birthday party given by the ladies of the Baptist church last Thursday evening was quite well attended, and on the whole, quite successful. The short program rendered was appreciated and all were quite well pleased with their birthday party. It netted the ladies a goodly sum which will be applied towards repairing the basement of the church and putting cement walls and a floor in it.

The quake was appreciated by many of our people last Thursday morning, especially by those who were awake, and also by some who were not. A number thought that a mighty wind like unto a cyclone was shaking their houses while others of course thought it was burglars. H. G. Burgess, of the East Kingston observatory, who is authority on all such nocturnal occurrences, states that it commenced at 5.10 and lasted until about 5.14 a.m. Anywhere the earth trembled violently in some places.

Rev. John Burgess, Leokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial, or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottles free at F. T. Robinson's, Genoa; L. C. Shaffer's Kingston.

J. DeWald, C. M. & St. P. inspector of semaphores, was in town Saturday. He states that Charles Chapin, of interlocking switch-tower fame, who was a well known figure a while ago, now has a very desirable position in Union Depot, Chicago, in the baggage department.

Yellowstone Park Geysers.

Advises just received at the Northern Pacific offices from W. P. Howe, in charge of the lunch station at the Upper Geyser Basin, state that the geysers are playing better than ever. They are much finer than last year. The giant one of the finest in the park, plays to an height of about 250 feet. Last year its eruptions took place once in about five days and continued for 90 minutes. This year it is playing more frequently. Mr. Howe is regularly noting the temperature of the Giantess another of the large geysers. It is also playing frequently and its temperature at time of playing ranges from 193 to 198 Fahrenheit. For six cents sent to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn. you will receive a fine tourist book that contains a chapter on the park.

Electric Peak.

Is the highest mountain around Yellowstone Park. It is 11,155 feet above sea level. As the park tourist leaves the train at Cinnabar, he will see this grand old mountain looming up in the west. After the stage leaves Golden Gate and enters Swan Lake Valley it is seen again to the north. From this place it stands out in fine style. The mountain lies about eight miles northwest from Mammoth Hot Springs, and the Northern boundary of the park runs across it. Send six cents to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn. for a beautiful tourist book.

Yellowstone Park Season.

Closes September 30th. For years you have been expecting to visit this wonderful some day. Throw expectations to the winds and take hold on actuality. "Act, act in the living present"—and go. Geysers, Hot Springs, Pellucid Pools, Grand Canyons, Mountain Lakes, Noble Forests, Thundering Cataracts, Glass Cliffs, Glorious Fishing, Luxurious Bathing, all found in this great Sanitarium. Drop business, get away from worry. Go and have a good time. Reduced rates this year. Send to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn. six cents for a tourist book that pictures the beauties of the Park.

HEART DISEASE, like many other ailments when they have taken hold of the system, never gets better of its own accord, but Constantly grows worse. There are thousands who know they have a defective heart, but will not admit the fact. They don't want their friends to worry, and Don't know what to take for it, as they have been told time and again that heart disease was incurable. Such was the case of Mr. Silas Farley of Dyesville, Ohio who writes June 19, 1894, as follows:

"I had heart disease for 23 years, my heart hurting me almost continually. The first 15 years I doctored all the time, trying several physicians and remedies, until my last doctor told me it was only a question of time as I could not be cured. I gradually grew worse, very weak, and completely discouraged, until I lived, propped half up in bed, because I couldn't lie down nor sit up. Thinking my time had come I told my family what I wanted done when I was gone. But on the first day of March on the recommendation of Mrs. Fannie Jones, of Anderson, Ind., I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart and wonderful to tell, in ten days I was working at light work and on March 19 commenced framing a barn, which is heavy work, and I haven't lost a day since. I am 56 years old, 6 ft. 4 1/2 inches and weigh 250 lbs. I believe I am fully cured, and I am now only anxious that everyone shall know of your wonderful remedies."

Dyesville, Ohio. SILAS FARLEY.
Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at 50c. 6 bottles for $2.50 or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

50 Cents
A Year!

The Chicago Weekly Dispatch has made arrangements by which it has reduced the subscription rate to 50 CENTS a year, postpaid. The rate will be maintained until the circulation has reached 250,000 copies weekly, or until the close of the campaign of 1896. The paper will be continued at the present size of twelve pages and will be a great national democratic newspaper, defending historic democracy, upholding the national democratic platform of 1892, advocating the restoration of the people's money, urging the emancipation of the party from monopoly domination, contending for a return to Jeffersonian principles and battling for the rights of man against the rule of property.

We appeal to all who wish to identify themselves with the common people to send in a subscription for one year at once, and to include one or more persons to whom they would like to send a paper; also to send us the names and postoffice addresses of these who would be likely to subscribe.

Experiences Not Necessary. Anyone can sell Juvenile Books.
SPECIAL. We will enlarge our business the first of the year, quite a good deal, opening 600 or more branch offices, and will need more general traveling agents to which we pay a salary of $778 a year and all expenses. We always choose from our successful Local Agents, and if you prove your ability we will have a place for you. But whether you desire to travel or not send for an outfit at once and make several hundred dollars in a few weeks. Outfits ready address. DEPT. C.
