A SERIOUS THOUGHT.

Genoa is Practically Without the Slightest Fire Protection.

We have seriously wondered since making Genoa our home, if the property owners and tax payers have given a serious thought to the awful fate of the business portion of this fair and thriving little city should that fell dragon, fire, ever get a small start among the business houses. If you have not, it is certainly time now that you should. Because you have so far escaped the unsatiable fire flend is no sign that you will always escape. There would be no stop should it once secure a hold and there will be nothing Make it easy for them to return. Do to add in conclusion, but those saddest of all words, "It might not have been."

Adequate fire protection should be the first thought of all enterprising and public spirited citizens.

We can not believe that there is one citizen who does not believe but that we should have adequate fire protec tion. Stop for one moment and realize with what a small sum of money, comparatively, suitable and efficient protection against fire could be obtained Citizens give this matter serious thought and commence action on the matter at once.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

The Personality of Christ was Altogether Lovely.

Characteristics of the Saviour-He Believed in Cleanliness, Sobriety and Domesticity-His Great Love and Sympathy.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage took for the subject of a recent sermon in the Brooklyn tabernacle: "Fairest of the Fair" as relating to the character and personality of Christ. His text was: He is altogether lovely-Solomon's Song,

The human race has during centuries been improving. For awhile it deflected and degenerated, and from all I can read, for ages the whole tendency was toward barbarism. But under the ever widening and deepening influence of Christianity the tendency is now in the upward direction. The physical appearance of the human race is seventy-five per cent. more attractive than in the sixteenth, seventeenth or eighteenth centuries. From the pictures on canvas and the faces and forms in sculptures of those who were considered the grand-looking men and the attractive women of two hundred years ago, I conclude the superiority of the men and women of our time. Such looking people of the past centuries as painting and sculpture have presented as fine specimens of beauty and dignity, would be in our time, considered deformity and repulsiveness complete. The fact that many men and women in antediluvian times were eight and ten feet high tended to make the human race obnoxious rather than winning. Such portable mountains of human flesh did not add to the charms of the world.

But in no climate and in no age did there ever appear anyone who in physical attractiveness could be compared to Him whom my text celebrates. thousands of years before lle put His infantile foot on the hill back of Bethlehem. He was, and is, altogether lovely. The physical appearance of Christ is, for the most part, an artistic guess. Some writers declare Him to have been a brunette or dark complexioned, and others a blonde or light complexioned. St. John, of Damascus, writing eleven hundred years ago, and so much nearer than ourselves to the time of Christ, and hence with more likelibood of accurate tradition, represents Him with beard black and curly, eyebrows joined together, and "yellow complexion and long fingers like His mother." An author writing fifteen hundred years ago represents Christ as a blonde: "His hair the color of wine and golden at the root; straight and without luster; but from the level of the ears curling and glossy, and diwided down the center after the man-ner of the Nazarenes. His forehead is even and smooth, His face without a blemish, and enhanced by a tempered bloom; His countenance ingenuous and kind. Nose and mouth are in no way faulty. His beard is full, of the same color as His hair, and forked in form; His eyes blue and extremely brilliant. My opinion is it was a Jewish face.

His mother was a Jewess, and there is no womanhood on earth more beautiful than Jewish womanhood. Alas! that He lived so long before the Daguerran and photographic arts were act features. I know that sculptor and painting were born long before Christ, and they might have transferred from olden times to our times, the forehead, the nostril, the eye, the lips of our Lord. Phidias, the sculptor, put down his chisel of enchantment five hundred years before Christ came. Why did not some one take up that chisel, and give us the side face or full face of our Lord? Polygnotus the painter put down his pencil four hundred years before Christ. Why did not some one take it up and give us at least the eye of the Lord, the eye, that sovereign of the face? Dionysius, the literary artist who saw at Heliopolis, Egypt, the strange darkening of the heavens at the time of Christ's crucifixion near Jerusalem, and not knowing what it was, but describing it as a peculiar eclipse of the sun, and saying, "Either the Deity suffers or sympathizes with some sufferer," that Dionysius might have put his pen to the work and drawn the portrait of our Lord. But no! the fine arts were busy perpetuating the form and appearance of the world's favorites only, and not the form and appearance of the peasantry, among whom Christ appeared.

It was not until the fifteenth century, or until more than fourteen hundred years after Christ, that talented painters attempted by pencil to give us the idea of Christ's face. The pictures before that time were so offensive that the council at Constantinople forbade there texhibition. But Leonardo Da Vinci, in the fifteenth century, presented Christ's face on two canvases, yet the one was a repulsive face and the other an effeminate face. Rapheal's face of Christ is a weak face. Albert Durer's face of Christ was a savage face. Tition's face of Christ is an expressionless face. The mightiest artists, either with pencil or chisel, have made signal failure in attempting to give the forehead, the cheek, the eves, the nostril, the mouth of our blessed Lord.

But about His face I can tell you face. The face is only the curtain of the soul. It was impossible that a disposition like Christ's should not have demonstrated itself in His physiognomy. Kindness as an occasional impulse may give no illumination to the features, but kindness as the lifelong, dominant habit will produce attrac tiveness of countenance as certainly as the shining of the sun produce flowers. Children are afraid of a scowling or hard-visaged man. They cry out if he proposes to take them. If he try to caress them, he evokes a slap rather than a kiss. All mothers know how hard it is to get their children to go to a man or woman of forbidding appearance. no sooner did Christ appear in the domestic group than there was an anfantile excitement, and the youngsters began to struggle to get out of their mothers' arms. They could not hold the children back. "Stand back with those childrenl" scolded some of the disciples. Perhaps the little ones may have been playing in the dirt, and their faces may not have been clean, or they may not have been well clad, or the disciples may have thought Christ's religion was a religion chiefly for big folks. But Christ made the infantile excitement still livelier by His saying that He liked children better than grown people, declaring: "Except become as a little child ye can not enter into the kingdom of God. Alas! for the people who do not like children. They had better stay out of Heaven, for the place is full of them. That, I think, is one reason why the vast majority of the human race die in infancy. Christ is so fond of children that He takes them to Himself before the world has time to despoil and harden them, and so they are now at the windows of the palace, and on the doorsteps, and playing on the green. Sometimes Matthew, or Mark, or Luke tells a story of Christ, and only one tell it, but Matthew, Mark Luke all join in that picture of Christ girdled by children, and I know by what occurred at that time that Christ had a face full of geniality.

Not only was Christ altogether lovely in His countenance, but lovely in His habits. I know, without being told, that the Lord who made the rivers, and lakes, and oceans was cleanly in His appearance. He disliked the disease of leprosy, not only because it was distressing, but because it was not clean and His curative words were: "I will be thou clean." He declared Himself in favor of thorough washing, and opposed to superficial washing, when He denounced the hypocrites for making clean only "the outside of the platand He applauds His disciples by saying, "Now are ye clean." giving directions to those who fasted; among other things He says, "Wash thy face;" and to a blind man whom He was doctoring: "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam." And He Himself actually washed the disciples' feet, I suppose not only to demonstrate His own humility, but probably their feet needed to be washed. The fact is, the Lord was a great friend of water. I know that from the fact that most of the world is water. But when I find Christ in such constant commendation of water, I know He was personally neat, although He mingled much among very rough populations, and took such long journeys on dusty highways. He wore His hair long, according to the custom of His land and time, but neither trouble or old age had thinned or in-jured His locks, which were never short and rugged road of life we can worn shaggy or unkempt. Yes, all His habits of personal appearance were Sobriety was also an established habit of His life. In addition to the water, He drank the juice of the grape. When at a wedding party this beverage gave out, He made gallons on gallons of grape juice, but it was as unlike what the world makes in our time as health is different from disease, and as calm pulses are different from the paroxysms of delirum tremens. There was no strychnine in that beverage, or logwood, or nux vomica. The tipplers and the sots who now quote the wine-making in Cana of Galilee as an excuse for the fiery and damning beverages of the nineteenth century, forget that the wine at the New Testament wedding the Lord made it, and the other that it who saved our sinking ship in was made out of water. Buy all you the hurricane on Gennesaret." And was made out of water. Buy all you can of that kind and drink it at least three times a day, and send a barrel of it around to my cellar. You can not make me believe that the blessed Christ, who went up and down healing the causes combined; or that He who mind, would create that style of drink which does more than anything else to fill insane asylums; or that He who was so helpful to the poor, would make a style of drink that crowds the earth with pauperism; or that He who came to save the nations from sin, would create a liquor that is the source of most of the crime that now stuffs the penitentiaries. A lovely sobriety written all over His face, from the hairline of the forehead to the bottom of the bearded chin.

Domesticity was also His habit Though too poor to have a home of His own He went out to spend the night at Bethany, two or three miles' walk from Jerusalem, and over a rough and hilly road that made it equal to six or momething positive, and beyond con- seven ordinary miles, every morning must be uniformly joyous.—Carlyle.

troversy. I am sure it was a soulful and night going to and fro. I would rather walk from here to Central park. or walk from Edinburgh to Arthur's seat, or in London clear around Hyde park, than to walk that road that Christ walked twice a day from Jerusalem to Bethany. But He liked the quietude of home life and He was lovey in His domesticity.

How He enjoyed handing over the resurrected boy to his mother and the resurrected girl to her father and reconstructing homesteads which disease or death was breaking up. As the song "Home, Sweet Home," was written by a man who at that time had no home, so I think the homelessness of Christ added to His appreciation of lomesticity.

Furthermore, He was lovely in His sympathies. Now, dropsy is a most distressing complaint. It influmes and swells and tortures any limb or physical organ it touches. As soon as a case of that kind is submitted to Christ He, without any use of diaphoretics, commands its cure. And what an eye doctor He was for opening the longclosed gates of sight to the blue of the sky and the yellow of the flower and the emerald of the grass! What a Christ He was for cooling fevers without so much as a spoonful of febrifuge; and straightening crooked backs without any pang of surgery; and standing whole choirs of music along the silent galleries of a deaf ear; and giving healthful nervous system to cataleptics! Sympathy! He did not give them stoical advice, or philosophize about the science of grief. He sat down and cried with them. It is spoken of as the shortest verse in the Bible, but to me it is about the longest and grandest-"Jesus wept." Ah! many of us know the meaning of that. When we were in great trouble, some one came in with voluble consolation and quoted the Scripture in a sort of heartless way, and did not help us at all. But after awhile some one else came in, and without saving a word sat down and burst into a flood of tears at the sight of our woe, and somehow it helped us right away. "Jesus wept." "You see, it was a deeply-attached household, that of Mary, and Martha, and Lazarus. father and mother were dead, and the girls depended on their brother. arus had said to them: "Now Mary, now Martha, stop your worrying. will take care of you. I will be to you both father and mother. My arm is strong. Girls, you can depend on me!'

But now Lazarus was sick; yea, Lazarus was dead. All broken up, the sisters disconsolate, and there is a knock at the door. "Come in," says Martha. "Come in," says Mary. Christ entered, and He just broke down. was too much for Him. He had been so often and so kindly entertained in that home, before sickness and death devastated it, that He choked up and sobbed aloud, and the tears trickled down the sad face of the sympathetic Christ. "Jesus wept." Why do you not try that mode of helping? "I am a man of few words," or 'I am a woman of few words." Why, you dear soul, words are not necessary Imitate your Lord, and go to those afflicted homes and cry with them.

Oh, that we might all have some thing of the great German reformer's love for this Christ, which led him to say: "If anyone knocks at the door of my breast and says, 'Who lives there? my reply is, 'Jesus Christ lives here, not Martin Luther." Will it not go right up into His presence and live with Him world without end? And f, entering the gate of that heavenly city we should be so overwhelmed with our unworthiness on the one side and the supernal spendor on the other side, we get a little bewildered and should for a few moments be lost on the streets of gold and among the burnished temples, and the sapphire thrones, there would be plenty to show us the way, and take us out of our joyful be-wilderment; and perhaps the woman of Nain would say: "Come, let me take you to the Christ that raised my only boy to life." And Martha would say: 'Come, let me take you to the Christ who brought up my brother Lazarus from the tomb." And one of the disciples would say: "Come, had two characteristics, the one that let me take you to the Christ Paul would say: "Come, and let me lead you to the Christ for whom I died on the road to Ostia." And whole groups of martyrs would say: "Come, let us show you the Christ for whom we sick, would create for man that rattled the chains, and waded the floods, style of drink which is the cause of disease more than all other glorified kindred would flock around us, saying: "We have been waiting a calmed the maniacs into their right good while for you, but before we talk over old times, and we tell you of what we have enjoyed since we have been here, and you tell us of what you have suffered since we parted, come, come, and let show you the greatest sight in all the place, the most resplendent throne, upon it the mightiest Conqueror, and the Exaltation of Heaven, the Theme of the immortals, the Altogether great, the Altogether-good, the Altogether-fair, the Altogether-lovely!

Well, the delightful morn will come, When my dear Lord will bring me home, And I shall see His face; Then with my Saviour, brother, friend, A blessed eternity I'll spend, Triumphant in His grace.

-Efforts to be permanently useful

If the following letters had been written by your best known and most esteemed neighbors they could be no more worthy of your confidence than they now are, coming neighbors they could be no more worthy of your confidence than they now are, coming, as they do, from well known, intelligent, and trustworthy citizens, who, in their several neighborhoods, enjoy the fullest confidence and respect of all who know them. The subject of the above portrait is a well known and much respected lady, Mrs. John G. Foster, residing at No. 33 Chapin Street, Canandaigua, N. Y. She writes to Dr. R. V. Pierco, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y., as follows: "I was troubled with eczema, or salt-rheum, seven years. I doctored with a number of our home physicians and received no benefit whatever. I also took treatment from physicians in Rochester, New York, Philadelphia, Jersey City, Binghamton, and received no benefit from them. In fact I have paid out hundreds of dollars to the doctors without benefit. My brother came to visit us from the West and he told me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He had taken it and it had cured him. I have taken ten bottles of the 'Discovery. He had taken it and if there should be any one wishing any information I would gladly correspond with them, if they enclose return stamped envelope."

Not less remarkable is the following from Mr. J. A. Buxton, a prominent merchant of Jackson, N. C., who says: "I had

return stamped envelope."

Not less remarkable is the following from Mr. J. A. Buxton, a prominent merchant of Jackson, N. C., who says: "I had been troubled with skin disease all my life. As I grew older the disease seemed to be taking a stronger hold upón me. I tried many advertised remedies with no benefit, until I was led to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When I began taking it my health was very poor: in fact, several persons have since told me that they thought I had the consumption. I weighed only about 125 pounds. The eruption on my skin was accompanied by severe itching. It was first confined to my face, but afterwards spread over the neck and head, and the itching became simply unbearable. This was my condition when I began taking the 'Discovery.' When I would rub the parts affected a kind of branny scale would fall off.

For a while I saw no change or benefit from taking the 'Discovery,' but I persisted in its use, keeping my bowels open by taking Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and taking as much outdoor exercise as was possible, until I began to gain in flesh, and gradually the disease released its hold. I took during the year somewhere from fifteen to eighteen bottles of the 'Discovery.' It has now been four years since I first used it, and though not using scarcely any since the first year, my health continues good. My average weight being 155 to 160 pounds, instead of 125, as it was when I began the use of the 'Discovery.' Many persons have reminded me of my improved appearance. Some say I look younger than I did six years ago when I was married. I am now fortyeight years old, and stronger, and enjoy better health than I have ever done before in my life."

Thousands bear testimony, in equally strong terms, to the efficacy of this wonderful remedy in curing the most obstinate diseases. It rouses every organ into healthy action, purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, and, through it, cleanses and renews the whole system. All blood, skin, and scalp diseases, from a common blotch, or eruption, to the worst scrofula are cured by it. For tetter, salt-rheum, eczema, erysipelas, boils, carbuncles, goitre, or thick neck, and enlarged glands and swellings, it is an unequaled remedy. Virulent, contagious, blood-poison is robbed of its terrors by the "Discovery" and by its persevering use the most tainted system renovated and built up anew.

the 17th Senator McLaurin, of Missis In the 17th Senator McLaurin, of Mississippi, made his maiden speech in the senate, supporting the tariff bill. Senator Smith, of New Jersey, followed in a speech devoted entirely to an attack on the income tax. He touched upon the charge of treason by Minnesota democrats, when he said: "Party ties grow weak when they make disregard of one's own convictions and disloyalty to one's own people the test of fealty. And I do not hostitute to add that even the misrule of the republican party is to be preferred to the communism of the populists and socialists. If that be treason then self-appointed censors of Minnesota do then self-appointed censors of Minnesota do then set appointed tensors of atmost acting to lay the charge at my door."

Fon the 18th Senator Morrill (rep., Vt.) expressed his regret that the financial and industrial crists had to be continued by a valighorious and clumsy attempt to carry out the democratic platform. He made some rather biting references to the trouble in which the democratis found themselves over the bill, and pointed out some of the items in which he thought they out some of the items in which he thought they had compromised with their principles and provided for a protective tartii on such articles as would win votes for the bill.

"Concerning the rates of duties reported in the tariff bill," he said, "it is no violation of the confidential relations of the senate commit tee on finance to state how they were all fixed and determined without the votes of the repub lican members and against even the votes o lican members and against even the votes of any hesitating or divergent minority of the democratic members. Thus many of the most important questions may have been determined by the small fraction of three or four of a committee of eleven. But while the process of evolution was a great novelty it will not be controverted that all the rates of duty are of the purest democratic origin. Tariffs for revenue only' prove to be only political tariffs, valid only after the next election."

He pointed out in detail what he considered the special evils of the bill, the first being the obsolete ad valorem system. The purpose of the bill, he thought, was especially destructive toward the production of the farmer. Reciprocity arrangements which benefit the farmer are to be abrogated. Senator Turpie (dem., Ind.) spoke in support of the tarff bill. He discussed the effect of a high tariff bill on the agricultural interests, introducing the topic by the assertion that agriculture was America's natural monopoly from the cheapness of the land, and it was from those engaged in agriculture that the demand for the repeal of the existing law was loudest. "The opponents of the pending bill opposed the putting of wool on the free list on the plea that it would check the development of high grades of sheep, but prefer that the people of the country should have cheap blankets and cheap clothing than that they should have fine Southclothing than that they should have fine South-down mutton to eat. It is not to be forgotten that the bill now before the senate is the official act and deed of the democratic party, and as such is entitled to the support of every mem-ber of the party. Justice may be delayed, bat-field even betrayed and wounded by the way.

ber of the party. Justice may be delayed, par-fied, even betrayed and wounded by the way, but it will arrive at last."

Senator Cameron (rep. Pa.) took the floor in opposition to the bill. Following Senator Cam-eron, his colleague, Senator Quay, delivered a second installment of his speech, discussing the production of iron.

On the 19th Senator Perkins (rep., Cal.) made a speech against the pending tariff bill, mainly devoted to a discussion of the articles which directly affected California wool, fruits, quick-silver, beet sugar, etc., although he considered other features in the bill in which his state was not interested, but which were opposed to re publican principles and which he accordingly

On the 20th Senator Gallinger (rep., N. H.) said the anomaly is presented to the senate of a bill that it is asked to enact into law which nobody thus far has ventured to unqualifiedly inderse or approve with the exception of the senator from Mississippi (Mr. McLaurin) and the junior senator from Indiana (Mr. Turpie). Even its distinguished author in the other house (Mr. Wilson) felt called upon to enter an apology for the measure. He pointed out the likelihood of a future invasion of American markets by foreign cotton. The proposed legislation, he said, threatened the transfer of the lumber trade to Canada; it would drive farmers from the soil of the state of New Hampers from the soil of the state of New Hamp shire; it would close up the woolen milis He pointed out the importation of ho siery factories into Rhode Island as a result of the McKinley law, and asserted that the industry was doomed if the Wilson bill is passed. Senator Gallinger took up in turn cotton manufactures, cutlery, granite, and other New England industries, and pointed out other New England industries, and pointed out the harm that would come to them if the bill passes. The increased tax on spirits would benefit the whisky trust alone. Free wool, he said, would ruin sheep husbandry in this country, and the income tax proposition he denounced as sectional, inequitable and unjust. The laboring masses of the industrial north have set their seal of condemnation upon the Wilson bill. Factories are idle, homes comfortless, and wives and children suffering for the necessaries of life. the necessaries of life.

Senator Gallinger was followed by Senator McMilan (rep., Mich.), who said: "A comparison between the Wilson bill as it comes from the house and the new Canadian tariff shows how close an understanding must have exmow close an understanding must have ex-isted between the framers of the two measures. No American can doubt that the ultimate destination of Canada is to become a part of the United States. That day will be a welcome one to the people of Michigan, who are now hemmed in on the east by a territory with which there are fair exchanges. To the people of the dominion also a union To the people of the dominion also a union with the United States would be advantageous in the highest degree. To the tories in their extremity the Wilson bill comes—as it comes to every foreign nation—bringing joy in the prospect of larger markets and greater profits; while to our own people, its portion, is smaller. while to our own people its portion is smaller wages and restricted activities."

Senator Dolph (rep., Orc.) followed in a speech against the bill. Mr. Dolph went over the history of progress under protection for the last thirty years. The free list of the Wilson bill was the object of sarcastic remarks by the senator. He argued at length also to show the superiority of specific over ad valorem duties. Various provisions of the bill he occlared would be disastrous to the Pacific declared would be disastrous to the Pacific coast, among others hops, prunes, lead, lumber and coal. Mr. Dolph quoted from President Cleveland's tariff message of 1887 estimating the loss to the wool grower on a flock of fifty sheep to be only $36 a year and on 100 sheep $72, and said that the president, living in a mansion provided by the government. 100 sheep $72, and said that the president, living in a mansion provided by the government, surrounded by servants and by all that wealth could purchase for his comfort and enjoyment and drawing a salary of $50,000 a year, forgot that $36 or $72 a year might represent all that many families could afford to expend for clothing. Mr. Dolph pointed to the rejoicing in England over President Cleveland's free-trade message, the Mills bill and the Wilson bill. He said the question to be determined by this congress is whether it shall legislate in the interest of the people of England, Europe and Asia, or for those of this country.

Senator Gray (dem., Del.) asked whether he wanted to levy tribute on the state of Dela-ware in order that Oregon might have a monopoly of the paper business?

"I did not say I wanted a monopoly of any industry for my state," replied Mr. Dolph. He went on to say that Oregon used a great quantity of goods from Delaware, and he paid a high tribute to the industry of that state.

high tribute to the industry of that state. Senator Gray thanked him for his complimentary words about Delaware. The present depressed condition of affairs in Delaware and other states, he said, was due to the cultivation of thirty years of high protection. We were living under the highest protective laws the country had ever known. There had not been a single industry of Delaware benefited by the McKinley bill, and he predicted that upon the passage of the pending bill prospects all over the country would brighten.

over the country would brighten.

The senator from Delaware might preach that doctrine, said Mr. Dolph, but there were thousands of workingmen out of employment in his state who would convince him of the fallacy of that doctrine

Senator Gray closed the incident by declaring that they were out of employment because the McKinley law was in force, and Senator Dolph

McKinley law was in force, and Senator Dolph resumed his speech.
In considering the income tax question a difference of opinion was discovered among the republicans. Mr. Dolph had given his experience in the collecting of the income tax in Oregon when it was in force, when not more than one-tenth of the tax was collected.
Mr. Teller (rep., Col.) said that his experience had been very different from that of Mr. Dolph. He did not think it was evaded any more than the personal property tax. In Colorado, where an income tax was in force, there was not as much difficulty in collecting it as there was in an income tax was in force, there was not as much difficulty in collecting it as there was in collecting the personal property tax. He did not think it was a good argument against a bill to say that the people were too dishonost to have the tax collected. In his opinion it was the most just and equitable tax that could be collected. It might be unprofitable, however. "Mr. President," he continued, earnestly, "I want to say to the senator from New Hampshiro" (Mr. Chandler, who had just expressed the same views as Mr. Dolph) "and to the senator from Oregon, and to any other senator who makes the claim that an income tax cannot be collected because the people are dis-

PITIFUL SCENE IN COURT.

An Aged Man Kneels Before the Woman He Had Widowed.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 18.—William H. Griffiths, a farmer of Tonawanda, this county, was convicted of man-slaughter in the first degree for the killing of Charles Emerson last September, and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Erie county penitentiary. Emerson was removing hay from Griffiths' barn in defiance of the latter's protests, whereupon Griffiths procured a gun and threatened to shoot. Emerson advanced on Griffiths with a pitchfork, and the latter fired

Griffiths was brought in for sentence. Judge Ward sentenced Griffiths to five years in the penitentiary at hard

The elderly culprit bowed respectfully to the court, then turned, and with tottering steps threaded his way to a woman garbed in widow's weeds her face covered with a veil of crape, who sat within the railing. She was Mrs. Emerson, widow of the man who lost his life at the prisoner's hands. Down upon h's knees before her he dropped, and, with a voice trembling with suppressed emotion,

"Mrs. Emerson, God knows I am sorry I killed him.' The courtroom was as still as a churchyard as this singular scene was enacted. Mr. Griffiths' word and manner seemed to indicate the sincerity of his repentance. His white hair fell about his face, and altogether he was a picturesque figure as he kneeled before the woman who was bereaved by his ill-considered act.

The widow burst into tears and her he has a heavy load on.—Glens Falls Repubsobs were heard in every part of the lican room. Rising from his knees Griffiths returned to his place and took his seat. Immediately the court adjourned and the prisoner was led back in getting a stay. Griffiths is 57 years of age.

The wife is dead and the husband's life hangs by a thread. The couple had had trouble with some neighbors, and a warrant was out for their arrest. When a policeman went to the house to serve the warrant he found Benkert lying on the bed ap parently dead, while his wife, wearing only one garment, crouched by the bed side with her head in the covers, one knee on the floor and one arm resting on a chair. She was dead. He said "I cut my wife's wrist so that she died. She cut mine first. I would rather be dead than be called a thief, and when my wife found I was going to kill my self she wanted to die, too. We are ranged that she should kill me and should kill her."

The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands of baking powder in the market, in their reports placed the "Royal" at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness; and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

JUNE 27th, is the date of the Demoof holding it, is Springfield.

The Ravenswood Press is a new publication printed at Ravenswood this state. It is a neat newsy sheet and should prove a good investment for its publishers.

STRANGER things are happening every day than the defeat of the Tammany ring, and that is what the Republicans of New York propose doing at the next election.

THE next important event which is booked to come up before the U. S. Senate is Roger Q. Mill's reply to David B. Hill. As there has been a tilt between David and Roger and they do not love each other as good Democrats should, the reply it is said, will come straight from Mill's burly shoulder.

THERE will be no opposition to Hon. A. J. Hopkins in the DeKalb convention. It is very apparent that Mr. Hopkins is the idol of the DeKalb Republicans, and he can have the unanimous support of DeKalb members of the g. o. p. He will without a doubt enter the convention at Aurora June 7th. with the solid delegation of Kane, Mc-Henry, Kendall and DeKalb counties.

THERE is no truth in the statment that L. M. Gross is to have opposition in the person of a Mr. Magee, of Hinkley. The county superintendency of schools is now in capable hands and should so remain. It is good policy to hold on to a good thing when you have it and we believe Mr. Gross should receive a renomination without any opposition, either complimentary or otherwise.

THE Republican county central committee meeting held at Sycamore last Thursday, turned out to be a regular old-time Republican love feast. After the transaction of the business which brought the committee together, the leading men of the party present responded to calls for remarks. Hon. I. I. E'lwood, of DeKalb, convinced all of his true blue colors in a red-hot, dyed-in-the-wool Republican

THE withdrawat of Hon. C. F. Meyers from the senatorial campaign on account of ill health is greatly regretted by his supporters throughout the district. This virtually leaves the field clear for the return to the senate this county and he will go into the senatorial convention with the unanimous support of the DeKalb county delegates.

JUST A FEW POIN

I would like to call your attention to a few of the many good? points possessed by the Hayes Corn Planters and the Tiger Riding Cultivator. Drop in when in town and I will be pleased to show them to you.

THE HAYES CORN PLANTER.

Being made of malleable iron with steel wheels, it has a very neat and light appearance. Although much lighter than other planters, it is much stronger and more durable.

The arrangement is such that the fine adjustment common to all other rowers is overcome. One half throw of the forks will rotate the plate, so it is impossible to miss dropping the corn.

The Hayes Corn Planter has many points superior to other planters which I will be pleased to explain if you will call on me.

TIGER RIDING CULTIVATORS

The Tiger Riding Cultivators have many advantages and improve ments over other makes. Its doubletree and neckyoke are wide, and keep the horses off the corn.

It is constructed mostly of wrought iron, is much lighter in weight, and consequently lighter draft, and much more durable than any other in the market.

It is easily operated, the shovels being easily guided by the feet. It is easily arranged for marking out corn and potato ground; works well for covering potatos when planted in rows; is a complete cultivator for plowing in grain and for cultivating fallow ground. IT HAS NO EQUAL IN THE MARKET.

Remember that I keep a Pumps and Repairs.

AN ILLINOIS MIRACLE.

A Case of Deep Interest to Wcmen Everywhere.

Saved Through a Casual Glance at a Newspaper-Weak, Pale and in a De-plorable Condition When Relief Came-A Remarkable Narrativo Carefully Investigated by a Dubuque Times Reporter.

[Dubuque, Ibwa, Times.]

Among the peculiar conditions with which the people of the present age are endowed is a remarkable capacity for doubting.
The Times determined upon a thorough investigation into a medical case out in vannah, Ill., as a matter of news, with the result that the case was even more remarkable than the public had been given to

Mrs. Kenyon was a good talker and told the story in a terse way as follows:

"I was born in Warren county, New York, thirty-three years ago. I was married when I was nineteen and came to Savannah seven years ago. With the exception of being at times subject to violent sick headaches, I considered myself a healthy woman up to five years ago. At that time to the ever present malaria in and about the Mississippi bottom lands. I was taken violently ill. The local physicians said I was affected by malaria and intermittent fever. I continually grew weaker and finally went to see Dr. McVey, of Clinton, Iowa, who is reputed to be one of the ablest physicians in the Mississippi valley. He treated me for a time without beneficial effects. I then consulted a prominent doctor of Savannah. My stomach would not retain the medicine he gave me and he came to the conclusion that my stomach was badly dis-Occasionally I would choke down and nearly suffocate. I then went to Dr. Maloney and he pronounced it a case of heart trouble. He helped me only temporarily. All this time I had grown weaker and paler until I was in a deplorable condition. I had a continual feeling of tiredness, my muscular power was nearly gone, and I could not go up half a dozen steps without resting, and often that much exercise would cause me to have a terrible pain in my side. Seemingly the blood had left my veins. I was pale as death; my lips were blue and cold and I had given up all hope of ever getting better. My husband insisted that I should take some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When these had been used I was somewhat improved in health. I continued their use and felt I was growing stronger, my sleep refreshed me and it seemed as if I could feel new blood coursing through my veins. I kept on taking Pink Pills until a short time ago and now I consider myself a healthy, rugged woman. My house is full of boarders and I superintend all the work myself. In other words, I work all the time and am happy all the time. I am positive that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for People saved my life, and I believe there are thousands of women who could find great relief if they used them. The sick headaches I was subject to from girlhood have disappeared, and I have not had a single attack since I commenced taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

One of her neighbors said: "Mrs. Ken-yon's recovery is something marvelous. She was reduced to a mere shadow, and was the palest and most ghost-like person I had ever seen. If miracles are not performed in these days I would be pleased to know how to describe a case of this kind.'

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, it seems, contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of the grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood such as scropfula, chronic crysipelas. eases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

He put down the burden, and not waiting for the silver piece that I wished to give him he made a quick movement in the direction of the fields. The overseer abruptly withdrew.

The man who was seated had his back to me, but by the looks of the overseer he must have known that there was somebody beside the truant negro behind him. He rose and turned round. It was a thin, bent figure, in a flowered dressing-gown and slippers. His hair presented that singular appearance caused by turning white in patches and streaks. Ilis face was hollow and wrinkled; his eyes were lusterless.

With the most apathetic expression he looked at me, and seemed to think that my appearance did not call for question or remark. At least he made

"I beg your pardon, sir," I said. "Is Mr. Pierce Bostock at home? Can I see

His own talk, delivered in a feeble, broken voice, excited him and brought on a fit of coughing. He stamped with vexation, and sat down on a bamboo settee through sheer weakness.

"I am Pierce Bostock," he said, when he could find voice again. "What the devil do you want?"

I ought to have expected this announcement. and to have been prepared for it; but I felt very much at that instant as though I had been following a chimera. To be exact, I felt cold and sick, and the hopes of long years vanished as a puff of smoke. And yet it seemed incredible. This Mr. Bostock -this the hearty, ruddy, happy planter who had crossed our stony New Hampshire fields ten years before, and pushed out my horizon everywherethis feeble, testy, drooping invalid?

My hopes were all turned to ashes on the spot; yet I resolved to speak out, and end the farce. He would not recognise me, or would bid me begone if he should. No matter-I would see which he would do, and then tear this cruel leaf out of the book of my life, and turn to other scenes.

"Well-are you dumb? What do you say for yourself?"

"Mr. Bostock, I am Dorr Jewett, Do you not know me?"

A very faint appearance of interest came to his face.

"Jewett?" he repeated. "I believe I used to hear that name. Why, yes; Amos Jewett was my schoolfellow when I was a boy. Dorr-Dorr? That was my father's name." I saw that his mind was groping for memory, and I waited.

He motioned me to sit down with him. He looked at me, but was silent. "Amos Jewett was my father," I ventured. "Don't you remember coming to our poor New Hampshire home ten years ago, sir? Don't you remember how kind you were to us? I was the boy you took so much notice of."

He heard me, and the mists seemed

A look of surprised intelligence came

"You Dorr Jewett? - little Dorr? Bless me, how you have grown! I'm not often glad to see anyone but my child, in these days; but I am glad to see you. Is your father well?"

"Why, he died, sir, more than a year ago. I wrote to you about it."

"I never read letters now-nor papers-nor books. Not now. Yet I do remember a nice letter you wrote me once, years ago, before-

The change that came over that woeful face terrified me. It was literally black with rage, with fury, called up by his own speech.

"Yes, sir," I hastened to say, "and you answered it so kindly.'

"Did I? That is well: I am glad to hear it. So you've come to look up a wretched and lonely old man like me, have you, because I was kind to you? Do you know, my boy, I don't think there's another man in Louisiana, or out of it, could soften me the way you have. I'm going to have you stay here, now you've come. Oh, yes, I do remember now all about the time I went Mr. Bostock. to Boston, and back among the hills you and poor Amos out in the fields, and ate your good mother's mush and

His face seemed recreated. It actually wore a gentle smile.

"But it was long ago, and life has been hard and cruel with me since, and I had forgotten all these pleasant things. Why, boy, it seems to me as if you'd come to me from another world.' He took my hand in his own thin hand.

"You'll stay with me, Dorr Jewett, won't you?"

I believe the tears came to my eyes at the question. It was asked in a votce which was the ghost of that hearty, resonant tone that had long sounded in my dreams. I told him that I would stay awhile.

"Always, Dorr; I want you with me. I remember, now, I asked you long ago to come. I am rich, my boy; I've got money, and plantations, and slaves but I haven't any friends. Well, who would I be kind to, if it wasn't to Amos Jewett and his boy? O! Amos was my chum; he'd wrestle with me and throw me; but he'd fight any boy that tried to put upon me. I want somebody to talk to; my girl can't always be with me. Le Fevre is a good fellow, but he's never happy unless he's driving the niggers round. He shall show you the plantation when affairs here, and of the condition of his you've rested - to-morrow-yes, that will be time enough. When you want to go to New Orleans he shall go with you; I never stir off the place. You'll see how the cane grows-the old cane and the new cane. Le Fevre says he's got more than a hundred acres now planted. He'll show you the sugar mill, and maybe he can figure up what the crop will be this year. Good black soil this, Dorr. This is better than planting corn in the cracks of the rocks up north, eh? No, you won't talk about going away, Dorr Jewett.'

So he rambled on, a wreck of mind as well as body, continually striving to struggle out of the gloom in which he was involved, and to reach backward to familiar faces and scenes.

A burst of melody shook the air; a clear, pure voice, singing a merry French song. Mr. Bostock raised his head, and a new intelligence gave mo-

CHAPTER XII. LIGHTS AND SHADOWS.

Down the walk she came from the house, light of step and graceful as a fawn, clothed in pure white, with roses in her raven hair. She was coming directly to her father, when she saw me. She looked from me to him; his smile at once seemed to arrest her attention.

'Indeed, since he has made you smile, papa, I hope he will stay long You are very welcome, Mr. Jewett."

With bewitching grace she extended her hand. I took it, and new hopes came to me. The world seemed bright-

I found Coralie charming, frank, unaffected. She wished to be told about far northern states, their people and their ways. All that I had to tell interested her. Then she sang and played for me exquisitely. It was the music of nature. The mocking bird's song that I heard that night in the magnolias was not sweeter.

At dinner Mr. Le Fevre, the overseer, came in, and we were made acquainted. He seemed a blunt man, but not rude, and his reserve soon gave way to conversation. I saw from the looks of the house-servants that he was no more a favorite indoors than out. The quadroon girl who stood behind Mr. Bostock's chair and pulled the cord that moved above the table a fan, keeping a current of air circulating in room-this girl I once observed "making a face" at the overseer, when he was looking elsewhere.

"You are such a cruel man," the lady remarked.

"Ah, Miss Coral, you'll never underhow lazy these niggers are, when they're not followed close. If it wasn't for me, your father wouldn't have half a crop, any year. That Jeremiah, for instance: he'd fish in the bayou and play the banjo all day, if I didn't look after him."

"We do have better crops under Mr. Le Fevre's management," said Mr. Bostock. "Still, I don't see why he has to drive up the field hands so. They get along better on other planta-

"I'll show you the difference when the cane is cut," said the overseer, with his mouth full.

"I think Mr. Le Fevre would get on easier with our people if he had always been at the south," said the lady.

"May be so, Miss Coral. I'm a Pennsylvanian, and I came down here fresh, to learn about the niggers. I know 'em! They want bossing, and a good deal of it."

Weeks passed swiftly by, and I remained at this delightful home. Remembering my promise, I wrote to Mr. Dorion, giving him a full account of old friend. I will say here, that the subject need not be again referred to, that, while my presence and the recollections it recalled had a temporary effect in withdrawing Mr. Bostock from the clouds that enveloped him, that unfortunate condition soon returned. He was sunk in melancholy, morose and peevish. There was never a time when the sight of his child or the sound of her voice would not cause him to brighten for a moment, and I could see that he sometimes tried to shake off his shadows and converse freely with me. But the effort was The decline of his physical health was bad enough; but it was not to be compared to the changed condition of his mind. I watched him narrowly, and I began to think that Mr. Dorion was right. The man's mental faculties were impaired; but there was some mysterious terror, some haunting dread back of that condition. He would sit for an hour sunk in moody abstraction, and dressed would start, look wildly at his daughter, and recover his sense of his surroundings slowly and with effort. Could all this be the result of remorse. the punishment of conscience for the slaying of Castex? No; for I recalled Mr. Dorion's shuddering description of the ferocity with which his friend had avowed that he meant to kill his adversary. My watchings, and my reflections by day and night, gave me no clew to the mystery of the man's demeanor, to the appalling change that had come over him. So the weeks passed. One week had not gone when I was placed upon a footing of charming, cordial friendship with the beautiful daughter of this house. We read together, she often aloud from old French romances, in the original. She played and sang to me; she told me all about this strange region, with its natural wonders. I told her of the White mountains and the granite hills, the snowstorms and the cold of winter. All these things she had read of, but she listened to my stories as though they were leaves from some fairy chronicle. And, most charming of all, we would wander by the moonlight through the oak and magnolia grove: through the wide fields green with the cane leaves, to the edge of the impenetrable cypress swamps, where the cry of the pelican and the splash of the alligator could be heard.

Did I reflect as to whither all this vas tending? Did it occur to me that the seed I was sowing could only come to a bitter harvest of impossibilities? In fact, I took no thought about it. I let the dream go on-the entrancing, enrapturing dream!

But my time was not all passed in this way. I became well acquainted with Le Fevre, and found that he was much more blunt than brutal; though the negroes all stood in fear of him. He took me over the plantation and explained the processes of cane-growdispelled from his brain as by magic. become passive and silent, from the days at the St. Charles, and examined

But I was rejoiced to see that front with its forest of smake-pipes unique city, which, within less than a century, has been under Spanish, French and American government; we visited the market; we rode in the suburbs on the hard and shining shell roads. Back again at the La Fourche plantation, we went over to the ancient French town of Thibodeaux, and dined at an inn, where, except the bread, I knew not the name of a single dish that I ate.

It was to me a season of glamour, a happy time, that I knew must end, somehow; yet I was treated precisely as though I were to remain forever. wished not to break the spell: and it was only to test Mr. Bostock's feelings toward me that I said to him one day, when we were alone:

"I have been with you six weeks; is that not a pretty long visit?"

He roused himself and looked troubled. "You don't think of leaving me,

"Why, sir-you know I've got my own way to make, somewhere. This is all pleasure and vacation." "You like it here, then?"

"Indeed I do, sir. Everything is charming.'

"Stay, then. It does me good to have you here. Stay till November, anyway. I can't have you go so soon. Do you want money?"

"No. sir.' "Tell me whenever you do. Enjoy yourself all you can-and don't think of going. I loved your father; I love

His hand was laid affectionately on my shoulder; a mist shone in his weary eyes.

So that was settled-for a time. I was not to leave him-nor Coralie. But that night in my dreams the warning face of Mr. Dorion came to me, and I seemed to hear his words again:

"There is a fearful mystery hanging over his past life. I do not know, you do not know, how you may become complicated with it, if you persist in going on."

CHAPTER KILL

THE NEW PRODIGAL It was an evening of early September that the first shadow fell upon my pleasant existence at this home. Mr. Bostock's habit was to retire early. This night he had chosen to remain up, and was sitting in his easy chair upon the veranda. Coralie was at the piano: I sat on the upper step, listenng to the laughter and banjo-strumming from the negro quarters. Fevre sat lower down, smoking, engaged in his own thoughts. There was no moon that night, and the tall figure that came up from the road was upon us before we saw it.

"YES, I THINK HE'LL SEE ME."

"Does Pierce Bostock live here?" The voice seemed familiar to me, though I did not at first remember where I had heard it.

"Yes," said the overseer, gruffly. "What do you want?"

"I want to see him." "Well, perhaps you can't. I attend to his business mostly. He don't see strangers."

"I am not a stranger. I reckon he'll see me when he knows I am here." Mr. Bostock suddenly roused himself. "Who is that?" he asked.

"Yes, I think he'll see me," the stranger loudly repeated. I heard a sigh from the invalid, a deep-drawn, troubled sigh.

"Tell him to go away," he faintly said. "What makes him come here to annoy me? I don't want to see him:" "You hear, do you?" Le Fevre said, standing in front of the stranger.

"What d'ye mean, coming here to trouble a sick man? You go, or I'll find a way to help you."
"O, very well. If Mr. Bostock won't see me, he'll hear of me. May be he'd like to have me take a turn around La Fourche and talk with the planters about old times. Good evening.

He turned on his heel. "Stop!" said Mr. Bostock. "Tell him to come in."

He rose and walked into the parlor. The stranger followed. Perhaps a due regard for social propriety, should have restrained me from following; but the impulse to do so, growing out of my recognition of the voice and my powerful interest in Mr. Bostock, was irresistible. As for the pugnacious overseer, the sharp words that he had had with the stranger and the constraint under which the planter was acting were sufficient reasons to cause him to go in also.

WASHINGTON, April 25. - The commissioners of the District of Columbia took action Monday on the impending Coxey invasion. After a long executive session and consultation with the attorney of the district a manifesto was prepared and given out which calls attention to the fact that the right of petition does not extend to the lengths the Coxeyites appear to imag-

President Cleveland has discussed the matter freely with the menbers of the cabinet and with leading congress-He has expressed the regret he felt lest the foolish pilgrimage of Coxey's band to Washington might lead others to believe that this was the way to secure legislation. The president had looked on the movement as a harmless one in its beginning, but he has felt, as have the local authorities, that if it were a genuine movement of men seeking work it was strange that they should come to Washington; and he has feared the distress would be great if several thousand men were gathered here, where there is no possible avenue of employment open. At the same time the president has been desirous of avoiding anything that would seem likely to cause irritation or to interfere with the rights of citizens to petition congress for whatever objects they please.

So the Washington authorities have defined their attitude towards Coxey's band. It is the attitude of the national capital because the district commissioners, and not the president, constitute the municipal power in the District of Columbia. The president has no intention, under present circumstances, of issuing a proclamation. The emergency is met by the proclamation issued by the district commissioners. President Cleveland knew of its purport, because he had been in consultation with the commissioners and with the chief of police. It meets his approval and is to that extent an indication of the views of the president as to the manner in which the commonweal army should be treated. Its issue is timely because the usual wild reports have been set afloat that the president has already called out the regular troops. The basis for this rumor was that the companies of Fort Myer had gone down to Virginia for their regular drill.

Following is the full text of the commissioners' proclamation:

"Whereas, It is reported that several organized bodies of men are approaching the District of Columbia with the allowed purpose of securing such congressional action as will relieve the condition of unemployed laborers throughout the country; and,

"Whereas, All unemployed men and others throughout the country who may be in sympathy with the movement have been invited assemble in front of the national capitol on the lst day of May proximo for the purpose of compelling favorable action by congress by mere force of numbers and physical presence; and, "Whereas, The constitutional right of petition does not justify methods dangerous to beace and good order, which threaten the quiet of the national capital, which are contrary to law and opposed to the ordinary means of ob-taining legislative relief under our system of government; and,

"Whereas. It is declared to be the intention of this body of unemployed and destitute peo-ple not only to gather together for the purpose aforesaid at the city of Washington, but there to remain until their mission shall have been accomplished; and,
"Whereas, The national capitol is chiefly devoted to public business and is the center of federal legislation, and, as a result of its lack of ordinary means of affording employment, is ordinary means of affording employment, is now taxed to its utmost capacity in charitable efforts to care for its own poor and unemployed, now, therefore, the commissioners of the District of Columbia, who are charged with the duty of maintaining peace and good order, and with enforcing the laws of said district, being sensible of the gravity of the situation, and fully appreciating the hardship which must come upon many innocent but misguided people if this fliconsidered movement should be continued, do hereby appeal, in the interest of humanity and hereby appeal, in the interest of humanity and in furtherance of the peace and good order which are enjoined by the laws in force in said district, to the good sense and patriotism of all those engaged in or who contemplate taking any part in the proposed demonstration, and urge them to reconsider their intention to come into the District of Columbia for that purpose.

"No possible good can come of such a gather-"No possible good can come of such a gathering, and with no proper preparations or means of subsistence suffering and ultimate disorder will certainly ensue. No wrong can be righted, no condition of labor amcliorated, no remedy for any existing evil realized by the contemplated demonstration of physical force. Every desirable end can physical force. Every desirable end can be more certainly and effectively accomplished by ordinary and lawful methods. The commissioners, while in entire sympathy with all people out of employment, and having no desire or purpose to deal harshly with unfortunate but honest men who seek relief by reasonable and lawful means, are in duty bound to give notice to those who are tempted un-der any pretext to swell the number of un-employed persons alrady here that there is meither work for them nor means for their maintenance in the district, that the law does not permit the soliciting of alms in our streets and forbids parades, assemblages or orations in the capitol grounds, and the obstruction of any public grounds, streets, highways or avenues and the approaches to public or private buildings.

"The commissioners give notice also to the criminals and evildoers who, under cover of a crowd of unemploped men in our streets, may come for the purposes of crime and disorder, that all such will be apprehended and summarily dealt with.

"And finally they give notice to all who come here against their advice and protest that the laws in force in the District of Columbia are adequate for every emergency and will be wisher the process of the control of "John W. Ross,
"George Truesdell,
